

ROTARY STARTS ANTI-HOARDING MOVEMENT HERE

Local Civic Club To Urge Chamber Of Commerce To Lend Cooperation.

WILL ASK ALL TO COOPERATE

Expressing confidence in the nation-wide campaign to "stop money hoarding," the Gettysburg Rotary Club has inaugurated a movement to enroll all Adams county in this gigantic plan to free idle dollars to relieve industry, trade and commerce.

Voicing the sentiment expressed by Colonel Frank Knox, of Chicago, chairman of President Hoover's anti-hoarding commission, the local civic club will call upon the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce to join with its members and all others in the county to release hoarded dollars and thus express this community's interest in the movement to help industry, trade and commerce.

Request Cooperation
The Rotary club will discuss the issue at its Monday dinner meeting and will then attend the adjourned meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the Hotel Gettysburg annex at 7:45 o'clock to urge the chamber to appoint a local committee to work in cooperation with the Rotary committee and the Pennsylvania chairman of the national commission.

It is proposed to call upon the citizenry of Gettysburg and Adams county to join in the movement and to urge each citizen to do his or her share to release hoarded dollars in order that industry, trade and commerce will be stimulated to relieve the general economic depression throughout the country.

A communication has been addressed to each member of the local Rotary club as follows:

Rotary Letter
"President Hoover has appealed to Rotary to assist in a nationwide, whirlwind educational campaign to 'Stop Currency Hoarding' and thus free industry and trade from the shackles of unreasoning fear.

"Rotary International has responded by appointing Rotarian Frank Knox, of Chicago, as general chairman of an advisory committee, of which R. I. Vice President Robert E. Heun, of Richmond, Indiana, also is a member.

"Rotary International also has requested full cooperation from all clubs in the United States.

"Every Rotarian in Gettysburg can help by:

"1. Offering his services to the local committee.

"2. Telling his neighbor of the serious consequences of currency hoarding.

"3. Making sure that his business associates and employees are not hoarding currency.

"Let's get busy today. We can talk it over after the campaign." "I am advising Rotary International that the Rotary club of Gettysburg is giving one hundred per cent cooperation."

Large Quantity Of Foods Given To Local Hospital

The tabulated return of the recent drive for food for the Annie M. Warner hospital shows a generous response from the citizens of Gettysburg. Burgoon; The Leader of Men, Mrs. Arthur E. Rice; The Builder of the Nation, Mrs. Walter H. Danforth; and The Man of Sentiment, Mrs. Robert Fortenbaugh.

Musical Program
The musical numbers on the program will add to the colonial and patriotic atmosphere which will prevail during the afternoon. Mrs. Mark K. Eckert will lead the group in the singing of "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner" with Mrs. S. F. Snyder at the piano. Emmert Colescock will sing "George Washington, the Leader and Builder" by Victor George. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Snyder at the piano and by Mrs. George Miller on the violin. Mrs. Miller will play as a violin solo Felix Borowski's "Adoration" with Mrs. Snyder accompanying her. A group of songs loved and sung in colonial days will be sung by Mrs. Mark K. Eckert. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Jesse Boughton.

At the close of the program, a George Washington birthday offering will be taken.

All members of the league are expected to attend and an invitation is extended to friends of the organization.

Mrs. Henry W. A. Hanson, wife of the president of Gettysburg college, is chairman of the reception committee. Mrs. J. Ellis Musselman, chairman of the entertainment committee and Mrs. C. B. Stover and Mrs. Dwight F. Putman with their committees are in charge of the refreshments and decorations.

International Wet Rings Operate Along U. S. Shores

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP).—The coast guard estimates that "large and highly organized international combines" are operating 176 liquor smuggling vessels along the coasts of the United States.

Rear Admiral F. C. Billard so testified today before the house appropriations committee in hearings on the treasury department supply bill.

These vessels, he estimated, are landing the same amount of alcoholic liquors that 163 ships did last year.

aerial bombs shook the entire countryside but they failed to rout the Chinese, who continued to sweep the enemy with deadly rifle and machine gun fire.

Two Chinese airplanes retaliated by attempting to bomb the Japanese headquarters. They missed their target by only 100 feet.

Japanese officials said today that two additional army divisions would sail from Japan in the near future. These two units would comprise 22,000 men, they said.

Inspection of the Woosung waterfront at noon revealed everything quiet. All Japanese warships had withdrawn. Noise was visible. A small Japanese force of 200 remained on the left bank and all other troops had been thrown into the Kiangwan area. The commander of the Chinese army said that during the past four days the nineteenth route army suffered losses of 1,700 killed or wounded. Since the outbreak of hostilities on January 23, he said, the army's losses in killed and wounded were 2,200. He added that 5,500 Chinese civilians had been killed or wounded since that time.

Odd Fellows Honor Washington, Wildy

Tribute to the memory of George Washington and Thomas Wildy, founder of Odd Fellowship in the United States, was paid by speakers at a meeting of Triune lodge, 307, T. O. O. F., of Middletown, Tuesday evening. Four Odd Fellows from Gettysburg were among the 200 persons present.

John McIlhenny Smith, an attorney of Linglestown, spoke about Washington, and Levi Good, of Middletown, discussed the founding of Odd Fellowship by Wildy.

The meeting opened with the singing of "America" and the invocation by the Rev. Robert Lang, pastor of the Middletown Lutheran church. A quartet from Elizabethtown furnished music.

Those in attendance from Gettysburg were Robert Keiper, H. T. Stauffer, M. W. Stansbury and M. W. Klinefelter.

Order Of I. A. Meets Tuesday

Battlefield council, 717, Order of Independent Americans, will honor the memory of George Washington at its annual ladies' night function Tuesday evening, instead of next Wednesday evening, as previously announced.

The meeting will be held in the lodge rooms in the Murphy building, Baltimore street, and is open to all members, their wives and friends. Recitations and songs appropriate to the occasion will be given, and afterward bingo and other amusements will be furnished. Refreshments will be served.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—Stocks moved narrowly today although they recovered from a moderate decline at the opening. Several strongly supported issues gained two points but other favorites ranged only fractionally higher.

County Couple Weds Saturday

Miss Mae Kepner, daughter of Mrs. Carrie Kepner, Iron Springs, and Charles W. Weikert, son of Mrs. Jacob Weikert, Fairfield, were married at Hagerstown last Saturday by the Rev. J. W. Carter. The bride has been employed at Blue Ridge Summit for several years.

8 SNARED IN SPEED TRAPS

Patrolmen Resume Campaign Against Violation Of Speeding Laws.

Eight motorists, three of them drivers of trucks, were arrested Tuesday afternoon and evening in speed traps operated by local state highway motor patrolmen on the Lincoln highway east and west of Gettysburg.

The truck drivers nabbed were Burton Replage, Johnstown, 45 miles an hour; Harry E. Pinckroft, Greencastle, 44 miles an hour; James M. Archer, Stewartstown, 2, 44 miles an hour.

One of the passenger car drivers, Frank E. Ambuster, of Wheeling, West Virginia, paid a fine of $10 and costs of $2.25 before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer.

The other passenger car drivers apprehended are: Mrs. P. L. Monroe, Lancaster, 52.9 miles an hour; William A. McLachlan, Garrett Hill, 64.2 miles an hour; James A. Eby, York, 54.8 miles an hour, and Franklin McSorley, Pittsburgh, 64 miles an hour.

Informations will be laid against those drivers who did not pay fines.

Prince Lennart Reaches London With Bride-To-Be

London, Feb. 24 (AP).—Exiled for his love of a commoner from the bosom of his family and his home in Sweden, Prince Lennart, of Sweden, Tuesday night brought his timid blonde fiancée to London to make her his wife.

Looking much like a Texas college boy and his co-ed best girl, the happy, but abashed, pair stepped from a luxurious continental train at Victoria station into the strange city, neither had ever seen, to find no one to meet them except two hotel employees.

One of the unofficial reception committee were the blue uniform of a porter. The other was in the tophat, morning clothes and monocle of head grocer.

Small Crowd at Station
A small crowd gathered and one of the Victoria Station porters asked: "Is that the bloke what's renowned his name?"

The flashlights of thirty photographers went off at once and the fiancée of the prince—Miss Karin Nissvandt—hid her head on his shoulder while he blinked his eyes in astonishment.

The prince's appearance would have been no clue to his royal birth to the inquiring porter. He had on

PEACH CROP IN COUNTY IS THREATENED

Another Warm Spell As In January Would Endanger Crop, Says Expert.

MANY PRESENT AT BIGLER MEETING

Another period of warm weather such as Adams county experienced last month, followed by zero temperatures, would play havoc with the peach crop in Adams county, Dr. R. S. Kirby, plant pathologist of State college, told an audience of 75 fruit growers at Biglerville Tuesday evening.

While endeavoring to minimize the danger from uncertain weather, Dr. Kirby said there was no immediate cause for alarm nor was there any necessity for early sprays, except where leaf curl and brown rot are prevalent.

The State college expert has examined trees in various peach orchards of the county, and said he found the buds unusually developed, due to the unseasonably high temperatures last month. "So long as the weather remains cold," he said, "there is no danger of losing the crop, but if the weather should moderate, followed by zero temperatures, much of the potential fruit would be ruined."

Insect Control

The danger of unseasonable weather on apples is not quite so imminent, the speaker said.

In the course of the evening Dr. Kirby showed numerous lantern slides of plant insects. He outlined their propagation and the best methods to be employed for their control.

Dr. Stuart W. Frost, in charge of the State college research laboratory at Arendtsville, showed two reels of moving pictures, showing various phases of orchard activities in Adams county. These pictures proved particularly interesting to the growers, many of whom saw themselves at work in their orchards.

This evening both Dr. Kirby and Dr. Frost will address a similar meeting at the Franklin township consolidated school. The meeting is scheduled for 7:45 o'clock.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. David Kitzmiller, Gilliland apartments, announce the birth of a seven and one-half pound baby boy. Both mother and babe are doing nicely.

Consolidation of Two Banks Will Be Completed in Month

PRESENT BANKING ROOM SAID TO BE AMPLE FOR INCREASED WORK

Consolidation of the physical assets of the First National bank and Citizens' Trust company, the merger of which was announced at the close of a meeting of directors of the latter institution, late Tuesday afternoon, will be carried out in detail within a month, Edmund W. Thomas, president of the absorbing bank, announced today.

Just what will be done with the present banking house of the Citizens' Trust company is not yet known, Harry L. Snyder, president, said. The present bank building was erected in 1904, and the business was moved there from the Stallsmith building, center square, in January, 1905.

The merger of the two banks was authorized at meetings of the two boards of directors Tuesday. The name of the First National bank of Gettysburg will be continued.

Increased Capital

That the present capital of $150,000 of the First National bank will be increased is certain, Mr. Thomas said, but just what the new capitalization will be has not been definitely determined. Stockholders of the Citizens' Trust company will be given an opportunity to subscribe for stock in the National bank on a pro rata basis to be determined later. The par value of the Citizens' stock is $50 while that of the First National is $10 a share. Already stockholders of the Trust company are making inquiries for the purchase of stock in the First National, it was stated.

The First National bank will have to apply to the federal banking department for authority to increase its capitalization, but as yet that has not been done.

The present board of directors of the First National bank, now numbering eleven, will probably be increased, Mr. Thomas said. The Citizens' Trust company has twelve members on its board.

No Action On Personnel

No action on the personnel of the Citizens' Trust company as to who or how many of the present Citizens' Trust organization will be employed by the First National bank has been taken by the absorbing bank, although Mr. Thomas stated that Mr. Snyder, the president, will join the First National in an executive capacity.

The First National bank had resources of $2,104,263.24 at the close of business on December 31, 1931, while the Citizens' Trust company had resources of $1,465,201.23 at the same time, a total of $3,569,464.47. At that time, the First National had deposits of $1,506,936.98 and the Citizens' Trust company had deposits of $1,209,414.99.

The trust department of the Trust company had a total of $1,504,798.83 on December 31, 1931, and this, combined with the trust funds of the First National, will give the merged institution funds of that character in excess of $2,000,000. H. S. Reigle, of McSherrytown, is the trust officer at the Trust company, while J. Elmer Musselman holds that position with the First National, along with a vice presidency.

Whether or not the First National bank will enlarge its banking quarters after the consolidation has not yet been definitely determined, Mr. Thomas said. It is believed that alterations and improvements recently completed, providing greatly increased and more modern banking facilities, will be ample to take care of the enlarged business resulting from the merger.

Sheriff Farley Is Discharged

The governor said he was not satisfied with Farley's explanation of his income and it was merely on this ground that he removed him. The income as charged by Samuel Seabury, counsel of the legislative committee investigating the city administration, related primarily to Farley's "wonderful tax box" in which the sheriff deposited $290,000 in six years.

Blame Negro, 15, For Killing Girl

After a short inquest the jury of six men brought in a verdict stating "we find that Dorothy Lutz died from strangulation and other injuries at the hands of William Brown."

MANY PRESENT AT BIGLER MEETING

Another period of warm weather such as Adams county experienced last month, followed by zero temperatures, would play havoc with the peach crop in Adams county, Dr. R. S. Kirby, plant pathologist of State college, told an audience of 75 fruit growers at Biglerville Tuesday evening.

While endeavoring to minimize the danger from uncertain weather, Dr. Kirby said there was no immediate cause for alarm nor was there any necessity for early sprays, except where leaf curl and brown rot are prevalent.

The State college expert has examined trees in various peach orchards of the county, and said he found the buds unusually developed, due to the unseasonably high temperatures last month. "So long as the weather remains cold," he said, "there is no danger of losing the crop, but if the weather should moderate, followed by zero temperatures, much of the potential fruit would be ruined."

Insect Control

The danger of unseasonable weather on apples is not quite so imminent, the speaker said.

In the course of the evening Dr. Kirby showed numerous lantern slides of plant insects. He outlined their propagation and the best methods to be employed for their control.

Dr. Stuart W. Frost, in charge of the State college research laboratory at Arendtsville, showed two reels of moving pictures, showing various phases of orchard activities in Adams county. These pictures proved particularly interesting to the growers, many of whom saw themselves at work in their orchards.

This evening both Dr. Kirby and Dr. Frost will address a similar meeting at the Franklin township consolidated school. The meeting is scheduled for 7:45 o'clock.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. David Kitzmiller, Gilliland apartments, announce the birth of a seven and one-half pound baby boy. Both mother and babe are doing nicely.

HOSPITAL REPORT

Marie Rexroth, Arendtsville, and Leo Zentz, Fairfield, were admitted as patients to the Warner hospital.

Prince Lennart Reaches London With Bride-To-Be

London, Feb. 24 (AP).—Exiled for his love of a commoner from the bosom of his family and his home in Sweden, Prince Lennart, of Sweden, Tuesday night brought his timid blonde fiancée to London to make her his wife.

Looking much like a Texas college boy and his co-ed best girl, the happy, but abashed, pair stepped from a luxurious continental train at Victoria station into the strange city, neither had ever seen, to find no one to meet them except two hotel employees.

One of the unofficial reception committee were the blue uniform of a porter. The other was in the tophat, morning clothes and monocle of head greeter.

Small Crowd at Station

A small crowd gathered and one of the Victoria Station porters asked: "Is that the bloke what's renowned for his nym?"

The flashlights of thirty photographers went off at once and the fiancée of the prince—Miss Karin Nissvandt—hid her head on his shoulder while he blinked his eyes in astonishment.

The prince's appearance would have been no clue to his royal birth to the inquiring porter. He had on

Consolidation of Two Banks Will Be Completed in Month

PRESENT BANKING ROOM SAID TO BE AMPLE FOR INCREASED WORK

Consolidation of the physical assets of the First National bank and Citizens' Trust company, the merger of which was announced at the close of a meeting of directors of the latter institution, late Tuesday afternoon, will be carried out in detail within a month, Edmund W. Thomas, president of the absorbing bank, announced today.

Just what will be done with the present banking house of the Citizens' Trust company is not yet known, Harry L. Snyder, president, said. The present bank building was erected in 1904, and the business was moved there from the Stallsmith building, center square, in January, 1905.

The merger of the two banks was authorized at meetings of the two boards of directors Tuesday. The name of the First National bank of Gettysburg will be continued.

C.H. Clippinger Is Candidate For Re-election

Charles H. Clippinger, of Green-castle, Franklin county attorney-at-law, today announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for for the republican nomination for state senator from the Adams-Franklin district. He is the second republican candidate in the field, J. B. Wineman, of Gettysburg, having announced several months ago.

Mr. Clippinger, who received a conference nomination for state senator two years ago, following the death of State Senator Norman L. Bonbrake, defeated Dr. H. M. Hartman, of Gettysburg, for state senator at the November general election in 1930.

Although Dr. Hartman carried Adams county by a comfortable majority at that time, the Franklin county attorney was given a large vote in his home district.

Mr. Clippinger served four terms as district attorney of Franklin county. He is a graduate of Dickinson college and law school, and has practiced law in Franklin county since 1899.

District Farm Bureau Elects New Officers

The Cashtown community farm bureau held its organization meeting at the Franklin township consolidated school, near Cashtown, Tuesday evening, and elected the following officers:

John E. Biesecker, president; Clyde Andrew, vice president; Roy Mickle, secretary, and Lawrence Kimple, treasurer.

It was decided to hold meetings on the first Wednesday of each month, although the March meeting will be held March 9.

A membership committee is at work and committees of cooperative marketing, taxation and legislation will be appointed.

W. E. Beamblossom, of Harrisburg, secretary of the state farm bureau, spoke at the meeting.

Blame Negro, 15, For Killing Girl

After a short inquest the jury of six men brought in a verdict stating "we find that Dorothy Lutz died from strangulation and other injuries at the hands of William Brown."

Sheriff Farley Is Discharged

The governor said he was not satisfied with Farley's explanation of his income and it was mainly on this ground that he removed him. The income as charged by Samuel Seabury, counsel of the legislative committee investigating the city administration, related primarily to Farley's "wonderful tan box" in which the sheriff deposited $390,000 in six years.

Although he did not base his removal order on Farley's personal appropriation of interest on funds of litigants, the governor criticized this "highly improper practice" which has been "long continued."

LICENSE IS REVOKED

Revocation of the driver's license of Ralph L. Cullison, R. D. 2, McKnightstown, on a charge of intoxication while driving, was announced by the bureau of motor vehicles.

Must Record All Gas Transactions

The attention of persons engaged in the gasoline business, both distributors and those operating retail gasoline stations, today was directed to Sections 8 and 9 of Act 105, the Liquid Fuels Act, by Commissioner A. P. Delahunt, of the bureau of liquid fuels tax of the department of revenue.

Section 8, Commissioner Delahunt said, authorizes the bureau or any representative appointed in writing to examine the books, papers, records, storage tanks, and any other equipment of a distributor, dealer, or any other person engaged in the use, or sale and delivery of liquid fuels taxable under the act. This he explained, is for the purpose of allowing the bureau to verify the accuracy of any report or payment made, and also to ascertain if the tax had been paid.

Records Required
Section 9 provides that each distributor must keep for two years a record of liquid fuels used or sold and delivered within Pennsylvania. They also must keep invoices, bills of lading, and other pertinent papers as may be required by the department for the same period.

Service station operators purchasing gasoline from a distributor for the purpose of resale are obliged to keep for one year a record of gasoline received, the amount of tax paid to the distributor as part of the purchase price, together with delivery tickets, invoices and bills of lading.

Violation of this section, on conviction, carries with it a fine of $1000 and costs of prosecution, or imprisonment for not more than a year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

LENTEN SERVICE
The mid-week Lenten service in the Gettysburg Reformed church will feature a sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Howard S. Fox, on "Heidelberg Catechism Part 2."

Boy, 16, Admits Beating Mother

York, Feb. 14.—After hearing an admission in court Tuesday from Joseph Rill, sixteen years old, of Hanover, that a short time ago he severely beat his mother, Mrs. Edie Rill, and a younger brother, Francis, Judge Ray P. Sherwood directed that Probation Officer L. D. Keesey make an investigation of the circumstances. It is also alleged that the boy struck his father not long ago and broke several of his ribs. Rill pleaded guilty to assault and battery. Sentence will be imposed Friday after the result of the investigation is known. The boy is neat and intelligent in appearance.

Abandoned Boy Is Identified

Harrisburg, Feb. 24.—The 4-year-old "Harry" who wove an air of mystery about himself for a night and a day by evading questions after he was found alone alone Monday on a Cumberland Valley train between Mechanicsburg and this city, was identified Tuesday night as Clarence Wilson Thomas, of Carlisle.

Mary Powley, 60, of 321 Louthier street, Carlisle, who in a maze of tangled relationships was known to the boy as "grandmother," was arrested and placed in the Carlisle jail, charged with placing the boy on the train at Carlisle.

Confronted by policemen who came to identify him at the Children's Home of Harrisburg at Paxtang, the boy admitted that his "grandmother" walked me to the train.

"I don't want to go home. I want to stay here. I'm well feeded here," he declared.

PREP DEFEATS CARSON LONG

Academy Captures 27-26 Tilt On College Floor Tuesday.

Staging a big second half rally, Gettysburg academy's dribblers stopped their losing streak on Tuesday by noosing out the strong Carson Long institute quintet on the college floor, 27-26.

Coach Ziegler's team put up its best brand of ball this season in winning. The cadets led during the first three periods of the game but succumbed to a strong last quarter rally by the locals.

The entire Carson Long team figured in the scoring in the first half and took a 17-11 lead at the intermission. The cadets maintained their lead in the third period holding a 25-20 advantage at the quarter.

It was the last quarter that provided the thrills. The close guarding prep team held their opponents to but one point in this period and gradually forged into the lead, holding a one-point lead at the final whistle.

Burget and Hall were the high scorers for their respective teams.

Hold Teacher For Whipping Pupils

York, Feb. 24.—A ten-year-old boy on the witness stand in Alderman Jacob Stager's office Tuesday night testified how he was beaten at the direction of Roland J. Heathcote, principal of the Shrewsbury school last week, when he and two other boys were caught peeping in a window watching high school students rehearse for a play. He posted bail for court. Constable William Ritter held the warrants.

It appears from testimony offered Tuesday evening, that three young boys, ten, twelve and thirteen years, crawled onto a tin roof of the Shrewsbury movie house to watch the rehearsal from a broken window. It appears that they made considerable noise by crawling over the tin roof to the window to watch the play. The noise is alleged to have irked the members of the cast participating in the play. Heathcote is alleged to have ordered Henry Sechrist, Chester Wagner and Harry Wagner, high school pupils, to get the boys off the roof.

John A. Breithschwerdt brought information in behalf of his two minor sons, Edward, ten years old, and John, twelve years old. Mrs. Marie Duerr is prosecuting in behalf of her minor son, Arthur Frey.

War In East Is Linked In Trial Of 2 For Murder

Poughkeepsie, Feb. 24 (AP)—Far from the Orient, in the Occidental setting of a Dutchess county court room, jurors were asked Tuesday if resentment of the Japanese invasion of China would influence them in determining a verdict for Gento Akiyama and his sister-in-law, Sadako Otsuaka, Japanese servants, facing death for murder of their wealthy employer.

Akiyama, 38, and Sadako, 26, were charged with the murder last December 20 of J. William Schatz, wealthy middle-aged manufacturer. The Orientals had been discharged the night before for failure to prepare a midnight lunch for Schatz and his young house guest, Mrs. Florence Quick Carozza.

Jesse L. Rosenberg, of New York, counsel for the accused, asked all of the veniremen who filed through the jury box if the Sino-Japanese situation and the fact that the two on trial were Orientals would influence their judgment. Some evidenced that those factors would.

Rosenberg sought to delay trial so that additional counsel could be employed. He said money for that purpose was being obtained in Japan.

WESTERN TOWN IS SNOWBOUND

Colorado Community Appeals For Food; Sufficient To Last One Week.

Durango, Cal., Feb. 24 (AP)—Faced with a traffic blockade for the next forty-five days, snow-bound Silverton appealed for assistance in getting food into the community within the next week.

Silverton, a mining town, has a population of approximately 900. The city is fifty-one miles north of Durango.

Ben Allen, Silverton representative of the state highway department, told Durango city officials by telephone that was only enough food to last a week.

The survey party of the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad, which serves Silverton over a branch line through Animas Canyon from Durango, estimated it would be about April 8 before the work of cutting through the tremendous snowslides would be completed and normal service restored.

Perils Face Relief Parties
The officials of the railroad said they were unaware of any acute food shortage in Silverton, but that the work of clearing snow from the tracks would be started soon.

The only other possible means of getting food into the snowbound mountain town would be by airplane or on sleds drawn by men on snowshoes from Durango. Even this mode of transportation would be hazardous, as the drifts range from four to twenty-five feet in depth, and from 100 to 1100 feet in length.

As the snow melts in the daytime, the attempt to run food in by sled would be especially dangerous because of the possibility of fresh slides rolling down the precipitous granite walls of the canyon and engulfing a relief party.

Forger Suspect Held In Canada

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.—The cashing of $1000 worth of fraudulent travelers' checks in central city banks and shops led to the detention in Montreal, Canada, a few days ago of William Harris, said to be one of a clever gang of counterfeiters operating in eastern cities.

Three banking institutions, several shops and a railroad office in this city were victimized in two or three hours' operation two weeks ago. Yesterday, on identification by a department store employee and a bank official, a warrant was issued for Harris' return to this city on a charge of passing counterfeit checks.

David Alpert and Edward Haughton were also arrested with Harris and are being held in Montreal pending identification. The men were apprehended by the local branch of the William J. Burns detective agency, when operatives who followed their trail from Philadelphia to Albany and Toronto preceded them to Montreal and caught them in a Montreal bank.

The checks are counterfeits of the paper of a well-known steamship line. C. G. Ruddy, manager of the Burns office here, said they were one of the cleverest counterfeit jobs encountered recently. They are printed from plates, with only minor difference in color and grade of safety paper used revealing the difference between them and the genuine checks.

Paris, Feb. 24 (AP)—The chamber of deputies gave the newly formed government of Andre Tardieu a vote of confidence Tuesday and a mandate to carry on the present French disarmament and reparations policies.

The vote, 309 to 262, sent the premier back to Geneva to resume his duties as head of the French delegation to the world disarmament conference. A special train was prepared to take him there immediately, in order to permit him to speak before the representatives of other powers today on behalf of the French plan.

In a spirited reply to interpellations on the new cabinet's policies, Premier Tardieu told the chamber that France was doing everything possible at Geneva to obtain peace.

His declaration was the first made on behalf of the new cabinet, formed to replace that of Pierre Laval which was defeated in the senate and resigned last week.

As for reparations, M. Tardieu said his government would be willing to negotiate an adjustment of the schedule of German payments, but would not permit repudiation of existing agreements.

Prince Lennart

coming for the wedding and after the ceremony the prince will be just plain Mr. Bernadotte. And Karin, with the pretty corn-colored hair, will be Mrs. Bernadotte in a castle house in the middle of Lake Constance, Switzerland, far from her native Sweden.

It was in 1925 that the prince and Karin first met, he said.

"She was a little girl in pigtail, just 13 years old," he recalled. "I didn't like her a first, but later I saw her in a different light, and in 1927 I determined I would marry her."

"We have had so much heartache. It seemed like this moment would never come. But I made my decision. My grandfather made his and, since we cannot marry in Sweden without his consent, we have come here."

"I have never cared for my royal prerogative and I willingly forego it to have Karin with me always."

America Supports Open Door Policy

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP)—America stood firmly today behind the open door policy in China and disputed Japan's claim that the nine power treaty should be revised because China was not able to maintain order.

In an open letter to Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee, Secretary Stimson said observance of treaties would have avoided the present Chinese-Japanese situation and that no evidence had come to this government that compliance with them would have interfered with the protection of all legitimate foreign rights in China.

The secretary of state pronounced America's policy in the far east difficulties as one squarely behind the open door policy and the nine-power treaty.

Bullets Face Albright Here This Evening

Albright college courtmen, enjoying third place in the Eastern Pennsylvania collegiate basketball league, came to Gettysburg tonight in an attempt to snuff a little nearer the top of the heap and put the Bullets out of the running for the first league championship.

The aggregation from Reading, with a fifty-fifty split in their league tilts, are confident of stopping the onrushing Bullets, playing their marginal bets on the fact that Captain Seely of the Gettysburgians will not be in the line-up.

The Bream-coached tribe is in fighting form and has polished off some rough edges evidenced in the Ursinus clash last Friday night. The local dribblers have perfected a new defense which they feel will stop the crafty Reading cagers who have recently hit a terrific pace in the league tilts.

Buchl, Dracha, Howard, Oike-wicz and Jones will start tonight's fray and upon the shoulders of these five courtmen hopes of a victory are being pinned.

The preliminary engagement will bring the freshmen into action against the strong tribe from Y. C. I., York, at seven o'clock.

YANK FLIER KILLED BY JAPS

Robert Short, Airplane Salesman, Dies Of Injuries Sustained In Air Fight.

Shanghai, Feb. 24 (AP)—Official reports today confirmed that an American, Robert Short, 27, was shot down by Japanese planes over Soochow Tuesday and died of injuries.

The reports said Short was the sole occupant of the plane, which was encountered by the Japanese fliers during an air raid over Soochow, where there is a Chinese military airfield.

Short was employed by L. E. Gale as a salesman of airplanes. His employer's last report was that Short had gone to Nanking on Saturday with a new military plane the company had sold to the Chinese government.

Mr. Gale said he had told Short to deliver the plane to Nanking and then to come back to Shanghai immediately. Short said he would.

Chinese aviation officers said Short knew all the pilots in Nanking and might have joined a Chinese squadron on the expedition to Soochow, where they ran into some Japanese planes and shot down one of them.

Short came to Shanghai a year ago and for a time was an instructor in the Chinese bureau of aeronautics. Last spring he tried to arrange a flight across the Pacific, but nothing came of it.

Tardieu Given Confidence Vote

Paris, Feb. 24 (AP)—The chamber of deputies gave the newly formed government of Andre Tardieu a vote of confidence Tuesday and a mandate to carry on the present French disarmament and reparations policies.

The vote, 309 to 262, sent the premier back to Geneva to resume his duties as head of the French delegation to the world disarmament conference. A special train was prepared to take him there immediately, in order to permit him to speak before the representatives of other powers today on behalf of the French plan.

House Rejects Measure To Cut Enforcement Fund

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP)—Anti-prohibitionists in a crowded house again Tuesday lost an attempt to forbid wire tapping in enforcement of liquor laws but polled 25 votes more against the practice than in the last congress.

At the same time, prohibitionists voted down an effort to reduce by $2,000,000 the $11,369,500 allotted to the federal prohibition bureau for enforcement in the next fiscal year.

On the wire tapping proposal—supported by both republican and democratic wet blocs in the form of an amendment prohibiting the expenditure of federal money for that purpose—the vote was 132 to 103. In the last congress the anti-prohibitionists lost a similar amendment 99 to 78.

This amendment was offered first by Representative Linthicum, of Maryland, head of the democratic wet bloc, and then by Representative Schafer, of Wisconsin, a member of the republican anti-prohibition group.

Before rejecting the wire tapping prohibition, the house disapproved by a vote of 133 to 74 the amendment by Representative Boylan (democrat, New York) to reduce the appropriation for liquor law enforcement from $11,369,500 to $8,369,500.

IN SHADOW OF CHAIR 24 YEARS

Bill In New Jersey House Is Amended To Exempt Slayer Of Pastor In 1908.

Trenton, Feb. 24.—The shadow of the electric chair, which for twenty-four years has hovered over Archibald Herron, 73-year-old prisoner in the state prison here, faded still further Tuesday when Assemblyman Charles A. Otto, of Union county, said he will amend his "Death Warrant Bill."

Assemblyman Otto said his bill which, if passed, will give any judge in the trial court power to sign death warrants if the trial judge is dead, incapacitated or out of office, will not be retroactive and will not affect Herron.

Convicted in 1908 of the murder in Metuchen of the Rev. Samuel B. D. Prickett, Herron was sentenced to death. During a legal battle in 1909 over Herron's sanity the judge ordered execution deferred pending further orders.

Judge James J. Bergen, of Middlesex county court, died in 1923. Under the law, as trial judge, Judge Bergen, it was said, was the only person who could legally sign the death penalty order. Herron thus automatically began a "lifer."

Assemblyman Otto's bill is aimed at correcting the conditions under which Herron has remained technically under the death sentence. When the measure was introduced recently legal authorities believed passage of the bill would affect Herron.

But Assemblyman Otto's announcement that the bill will not be retroactive removes all fears that Herron will go to the chair. Refusing exercise and other privileges, Herron sits in his cell most of the time and smokes a pipe. He wants none of the outside world, he said.

Most of the delay in the case was caused by insanity pleas of his lawyers. Three times execution dates were set until 1909.

When Governor Ford ordered him executed court stayed the order, and then ensued the long legal battle, during which Judge Bergen died.

MARYLAND WET RING SMASHED

Huge Conspiracy Carried On Under Guise Of Oyster And Fishing Business.

Baltimore, Feb. 24 (AP)—Indictments naming thirty-seven men in an alleged liquor-smuggling conspiracy, carried on under the guise of oyster and fishing business on Maryland's Eastern Shore, were made public Tuesday by District Attorney Simon E. Sobeloff.

The indictments were given out by Sobeloff at the same time federal agents began a systematic roundup of those named in the bill, returned secretly last week by the federal grand jury here. They followed an investigation begun in September, 1930.

Aside from the indictments made known by Sobeloff, his office reported that others either have been voted or will be in the near future, naming the men regarded as leaders of the plot to land liquor in the Chesapeake bay and its tributaries from ships outside the twelve-mile limit.

Fred H. Dalton and James D. Lee, the first taken into custody, were arrested in Atlantic City. At the same time deputy marshals rounded up a number of those indicted in the vicinity of Salisbury, Maryland, but they were not identified in reports received by federal officials here.

Oyster wharves along the Wicomico river were the landing points for imported liquor, brought in from ships in the neighborhood of Fenwick Island Lightship, according to the indictments.

Must Record All Gas Transactions

The attention of persons engaged in the gasoline business, both distributors and those operating retail gasoline stations, today was directed to Sections 8 and 9 of Act 105, the Liquid Fuels Act, by Commissioner A. P. Delahunt, of the bureau of liquid fuels tax of the department of revenue.

Section 8, Commissioner Delahunt said, authorizes the bureau or any representative appointed in writing to examine the books, papers, records, storage tanks and any other equipment of a distributor dealer, or any other person engaged in the use, or sale, and delivery of liquid fuels taxable under the act. This he explained is for the purpose of allowing the bureau to verify the accuracy of any report of payment made and also to ascertain if the tax had been paid.

Records Required

Section 9 provides that each distributor must keep for two years a record of liquid fuels sold or sold and delivered within Pennsylvania. They also must keep invoices, bills of lading and other pertinent papers as may be required by the department for the same purpose.

Service station operators purchasing gasoline from a distributor for the purpose of resale are advised to keep for one year a record of gasoline received, the amount of tax paid to the distributor as part of the purchase price, together with delivery tickets, invoices and bills of lading.

Violation of this section on conviction carries with it a fine of $1000 and costs of prosecution, or imprisonment for not more than a year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

LENTEN SERVICE

Boy, 16, Admits Beating Mother

York, Feb. 24.—After hearing an admission in court Tuesday from Joseph Rill, a 16-year-old boy of Hanover that a short time ago he severely beat his mother, Mrs. Effie Rill and a younger brother, Francis Judge Rill, P. Sherwood directed that Probation Officer L. D. Keese make an investigation of the circumstances. It is also alleged that the boy struck his father not long ago and broke several of his ribs. Rill pleaded guilty to assault and battery. Sentence will be imposed Friday after the result of the investigation is known. The boy is neat and intelligent in appearance.

Abandoned Boy Is Identified

Harrisburg, Feb. 24.—The 4-year-old "Harry" who wore an air of mystery, about himself for a night and a day by evading questions after he was found alone alone Monday on a Cumberland Valley train between Mechanicsburg and this city, was identified Tuesday night as Clarence Wilson Thomas, of Carlisle.

Mary Powley, 60, of 321 Louthers street, Carlisle, who in a maze of tangled relationships was known to the boy as "grandmother," was arrested and placed in the Carlisle jail, charged with placing the boy on the train at Carlisle.

Confronted by policemen who came to identify him at the Children's Home of Harrisburg at Paxtang, the boy admitted that his "grandmother" walked me to the train.

"I don't want to go home. I want to stay here. I'm well feeded here," he declared.

Academy Captures 27-26 Title On College Floor Tuesday.

Staging a big second half rally, Gettysburg academy's drubbers stopped their losing streak on Tuesday by noosing out the strong Carson Long institute quintet on the college floor, 27-26.

Coach Ziegler's team put up its best brand of ball this season in winning. The cadets led during the first three periods of the game but succumbed to a strong last quarter rally by the locals.

The entire Carson Long team figured in the scoring in the first half and took a 17-11 lead at the intermission. The cadets maintained their lead in the third period holding a 25-20 advantage at the quarter.

It was the last quarter that provided the thrills. The close guarding prep team held their opponents to but one point in this period and gradually forged into the lead, holding a one-point lead at the final whistle.

Burget and Hall were the high scorers for their respective teams.

Hold Teacher For Whipping Pupils

York, Feb. 24.—A ten-year-old boy on the witness stand in Alderman Jacob Stager's office Tuesday night testified how he was beaten at the direction of Roland J. Heathcote, principal of the Shrewsbury school last week, when he and two other boys were caught peeping in a window watching high school students rehearse for a play. He posted bail for court. Constable William Ritter held the warrants.

It appears from testimony offered Tuesday evening, that three young boys, ten, twelve and thirteen years, crawled onto a tin roof of the Shrewsbury movie house to watch the rehearsal from a broken window. It appears that they made considerable noise by crawling over the tin roof to the window to watch the play. The noise is alleged to have irked the members of the cast participating in the play. Heathcote is alleged to have ordered Henry Sechrist, Chester Wagner and Harry Wagner, high school pupils, to get the boys off the roof.

John A. Breifschwerdt brought information in behalf of his two minor sons, Edward, ten years old, and John, twelve years old, Mrs. Marie Duerr is prosecuting in behalf of her minor son, Arthur Frey.

War In East Is Linked In Trial Of 2 For Murder

Poughkeepsie, Feb. 24 (AP)—Far from the Orient, in the Occidental setting of a Dutchess county court room, jurors were asked Tuesday if resentment of the Japanese invasion of China would influence them in determining a verdict for Gintaro Akiyama and his sister-in-law, Sadako Otsuka, Japanese servants, facing death for murder of their wealthy employer.

Akiyama, 38, and Sadako, 26, were charged with the murder last December 20 of J. William Schatz, wealthy middle-aged manufacturer. The Orientals had been discharged the night before for failure to prepare a midnight lunch for Schatz and his young house guest, Mrs. Florence Quick Carozza.

Jesse L. Rosenberg, of New York, counsel for the accused, asked all of the remembrance who filed through the jury box if the Sino-Japanese situation and the fact that the two on trial were Orientals would influence their judgment. Some evidence that those factors would.

Rosenberg sought to delay trial so that additional counsel could be employed. He said money for that purpose was being obtained in Japan.

WESTERN TOWN IS SNOWBOUND

Colorado Community Appeals For Food; Sufficient To Last One Week.

Durango, Cal., Feb. 24 (AP)—Faced with a traffic blockade for the next forty-five days, snow-bound Silverton appealed for assistance in getting food into the community within the next week.

Silverton, a mining town, has a population of approximately 900. The city is fifty-one miles north of Durango.

Ben Allen, Silverton representative of the state highway department, told Durango city officials by telephone that was only enough food to last a week.

The survey party of the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad, which serves Silverton over a branch line through Animas Canyon from Durango, estimated it would be about April 8 before the work of cutting through the tremendous snowdrifts would be completed and normal service restored.

Perils Face Relief Parties

The officials of the railroad said they were unaware of any acute food shortage in Silverton, but that the work of clearing snow from the tracks would be started soon.

The only other possible means of getting food into the snowbound mountain town would be by airplane or on sleds drawn by men on snowshoes from Durango. Even this mode of transportation would be hazardous, as the drifts range from four to twenty-five feet in depth, and from 100 to 1100 feet in length.

As the snow melts in the daytime, the attempt to run food in by sled would be especially dangerous because of the possibility of fresh slides rolling down the precipitous granite walls of the canyon and engulfing a relief party.

Forger Suspect Held In Canada

Philadelphia, Feb. 24.—The cashing of $1000 worth of fraudulent travelers' checks in central city banks and shops led to the detention in Montreal, Canada, a few days ago of William Harris, said to be one of a clever gang of counterfeiters operating in eastern cities.

Three banking institutions, several shops and a railroad office in this city were victimized in two or three hours' operation two weeks ago. Yesterday, on identification by a department store employee and a bank official, a warrant was issued for Harris' return to this city on a charge of passing counterfeit checks.

David Alpert and Edward Haughton were also arrested with Harris and are being held in Montreal pending identification. The men were apprehended by the local branch of the William J. Burns detective agency, when operatives who followed their trail from Philadelphia to Albany and Toronto preceded them to Montreal and caught them in a Montreal bank.

The checks are counterfeiters of the paper of a well-known steamship line. C. G. Ruddy, manager of the Burns office here, said they were one of the cleverest counterfeit jobs encountered recently. They are printed from plates, with only minor difference in color and grade of safety paper used revealing the difference between them and the genuine checks.

Phil Emerton's Band Will Play Here On March 2

Phil Emerton's Diamonds, nationally known dance orchestra, recently featuring a daily broadcast over WJR, Detroit, will open the new C. W. Epley dance floor, York street, Wednesday night, March 2.

Featured in Emerton's band is "Bobbie" Miller, of Gettysburg, at the piano. Miller has been with the band for several years playing a number of engagements in New York, Atlantic City, Boston and throughout the east and into the middle west. At present the Emerton band is playing a New York engagement and upon completion of this contract will play a long road engagement.

The opening dance here next Wednesday will be the first of a series to be given on the Epley dance floor.

America Supports Open Door Policy

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP)—America stood firmly today behind the open door policy in China and disputed Japan's claim that the nine power treaty should be revised because China was not able to maintain order.

In an open letter to Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee, Secretary Stimson said observance of treaties would have avoided the present Chinese-Japanese situation and that no evidence had come to this government that compliance with them would have interfered with the protection of all legitimate foreign rights in China.

The secretary of state pronounced America's policy in the far east difficulties as one squarely behind the open door policy and the nine power treaty.

Bullets Face Albright Here This Evening

Albright college courtmen, enjoying third place in the Eastern Pennsylvania collegiate basketball league, come to Gettysburg tonight in an attempt to snuggle a little nearer the top of the heap and put the Bullets out of the running for the first league championship.

The aggregation from Reading, with a fifty-fifty split in their league tilts, are confident of stopping the onrushing Bullets, playing their marginal bets on the fact that Captain Seely of the Gettysburgians will not be in the line-up.

The Bream-coached tribe is in fighting form and has polished off some rough edges evidenced in the Ursinus clash last Friday night. The local dribblers have perfected a new defense which they feel will stop the crafty Reading cagers who have recently hit a terrific pace in the league tilts.

Buohi, Drach, Howard, Olkiewicz and Jones will start tonight's fray and upon the shoulders of these five courtmen hopes of a victory are being pinned.

The preliminary engagement will bring the freshmen into action against the strong tribe from Y. C. I. York, at seven o'clock.

YANK FLIER KILLED BY JAPS

Robert Short, Airplane Salesman, Dies Of Injuries Sustained In Air Fight.

Shanghai, Feb. 24 (AP)—Official reports today confirmed that an American, Robert Short, 27, was shot down by Japanese planes over Soochow Tuesday and died of injuries.

The reports said Short was the sole occupant of the plane, which was encountered by the Japanese fliers during an air raid over Soochow, where there is a Chinese military airfield.

Short was employed by L. E. Gale as a salesman of airplanes. His employer's last report was that Short had gone to Nanking on Saturday with a new military plane the company had sold to the Chinese government.

Mr. Gale said he had told Short to deliver the plane to Nanking and then to come back to Shanghai immediately. Short said he would.

Chinese aviation officers said Short knew all the pilots in Nanking and might have joined a Chinese squadron on the expedition to Soochow, where they ran into some Japanese planes and shot down one of them.

Short came to Shanghai a year ago and for a time was an instructor in the Chinese bureau of aeronautics. Last spring he tried to arrange a flight across the Pacific, but nothing came of it.

Tardieu Given Confidence Vote

Paris, Feb. 24 (AP)—The chamber of deputies gave the newly formed government of Andre Tardieu a vote of confidence Tuesday and a mandate to carry on the present French disarmament and reparations policy.

The vote, 309 to 262, sent the premier back to Geneva to resume his duties as head of the French delegation to the world disarmament conference. A special train was prepared to take him there immediately, in order to permit him to speak before the representatives of other powers today on behalf of the French plan.

In a spirited reply to interpellations on the new cabinet's policies, Premier Tardieu told the chamber that France was doing everything possible at Geneva to obtain peace.

His declaration was the first made on behalf of the new cabinet, formed to replace that of Pierre Laval which was defeated in the senate and resigned last week.

As for reparations, M. Tardieu said his government would be willing to negotiate an adjustment of the schedule of German payments, but would not permit repudiation of existing agreements.

coming for the wedding and after the ceremony the prince will be just plain Mr. Bernadotte. And Karin, with the pretty corn-colored hair, will be Mrs. Bernadotte in a castle house in the middle of Lake Constance, Switzerland, far from her native Sweden.

It was in 1925 that the prince and Karin first met, he said.

"She was a little girl in pigtails, I didn't like her at first, but later I saw her in a different light, and in 1927 I determined I would marry her."

"We have had so much heartache. It seemed like this moment would never come. But I made my decision. My grandfather made his and, since we cannot marry in Sweden without his consent, we have come here."

"I have never cared for my royal prerogative and I willingly forego it to have Karin with me always."

IN SHADOW OF CHAIR 24 YEARS

Bill In New Jersey House Is Amended To Exempt Slayer Of Pastor In 1908.

Trenton, Feb. 24.—The shadow of the electric chair, which for twenty-four years has hovered over Archibald Herron, 73-year-old prisoner in the state prison here, faded still farther Tuesday when Assemblyman Charles A. Otto, of Union county, said he will amend his "Death Warrant Bill."

Assemblyman Otto said his bill which, if passed, will give any judge in the trial court power to sign death warrants if the trial judge is dead, incapacitated or out of office, will not be retroactive and will not affect Herron.

Convicted in 1908 of the murder in Metuchen of the Rev. Samuel B. D. Preckitt, Herron was sentenced to death. During a legal battle in 1909 over Herron's sanity the judge ordered execution deferred pending further orders.

Judge James J. Bergen, of Middlesex county court, died in 1923. Under the law, as trial judge, Judge Bergen, it was said, was the only person who could legally sign the death penalty order. Herron thus automatically began a "life."

Assemblyman Otto's bill is aimed at correcting the conditions under which Herron has remained technically under the death sentence. When the measure was introduced recently legal authorities believed passage of the bill would affect Herron.

But Assemblyman Otto's announcement that the bill will not be retroactive removes all fears that Herron will go to the chair refusing exercise and other privileges. Herron sits in his cell most of the time and smokes a pipe. He wants none of the outside world, he said.

Most of the delay in the case was caused by insanity pleas of his lawyers. Three times execution dates were set until 1909.

When Governor Fort ordered him executed court stayed the order, and then ensued the long legal battle, during which Judge Bergen died.

MARYLAND WET RING SMASHED

Huge Conspiracy Carried On Under Guise Of Oyster And Fishing Business.

Baltimore, Feb. 24 (AP)—Indictments naming thirty-seven men in an alleged liquor-smuggling conspiracy, carried on under the guise of oyster and fishing business on Maryland's Eastern Shore, were made public Tuesday by District Attorney Simon E. Sobeloff.

The indictments were given out by Sobeloff at the same time federal agents began a systematic roundup of those named in the bill, returned secretly last week by the federal grand jury here. They followed an investigation begun in September, 1930.

Aside from the indictments made known by Sobeloff, his office reported that others either have been voted or will be in the near future, naming the men regarded as leaders of the plot to land liquor in the Chesapeake bay and its tributaries from ships outside the twelve-mile limit.

Fred H. Dalton and James D. Lee, the first taken into custody, were arrested in Atlantic City. At the same time deputy marshals rounded up a number of those indicted in the vicinity of Salisbury, Maryland, but they were not identified in reports received by federal officials here.

Oyster wharves along the Wicomico river were the landing points for imported liquor, brought in from ships in the neighborhood of Fenwick Island Lightship, according to the indictments.

House Rejects Measure To Cut Enforcement Fund

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP)—Anti-prohibitionists in a crowded house again Tuesday lost an attempt to forbid wire tapping in enforcement of liquor laws but polled 25 votes more against the practice than in the last congress.

At the same time, prohibitionists voted down an effort to reduce by $2,000,000 the $11,369,500 allotted to the federal prohibition bureau for enforcement in the next fiscal year.

On the wire tapping proposal—supported by both republican and democratic wet blocs in the form of an amendment prohibiting the expenditure of federal money for that purpose—the vote was 132 to 103. In the last congress the anti-prohibitionists lost a similar amendment 99 to 78.

This amendment was offered first by Representative Luntin, of Maryland, head of the democratic wet bloc, and then by Representative Schafer, of Wisconsin, a member of the republican anti-prohibition group.

Before rejecting the wire tapping prohibition, the house disapproved by a vote of 133 to 74 the amendment by Representative Boylan (democrat, New York), to reduce the appropriation for liquor law enforcement from $11,369,500 to $8,369,500.

And when he came to his disciples,
he saw a great multitude about them, and the scribes questioning them.
And straightway all the people,
when they beheld him, were greatly amazed, and running to him saluted him.
And he asked the scribes, What question ye with them?
And one of the multitude answered and said, Master, I have brought unto thee my son, which hath a dumb spirit;
And whosoever he taketh him,
he tearth him; and he foameth, and gnasheth with his teeth, and pineth away; and I spake to thy disciples that they should cast him
out; and they could not.
He answered him, and said, O faithless generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him unto me.
And they brought him unto
him; and when he saw him, straightway the spirit tare him;
and he fell on the ground, and wallowed foaming.
And he asked his father, How long is ago since this came unto him? And he said, Of a child.
And oftentimes it hath cast him
into the fire, and into the waters,
to destroy him; but if thou canst
do anything, have compassion on us, and help us.
Jesus said unto him, If thou
canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth.
And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief.

Wedding Bells: Basehoar—Holtzworth: Paul G. Basehoar, son of
Geo. P. Basehoar, and Miss Eva R.
Holtzworth, daughter of Mrs. Josephine Holtzworth, of Steinwehr
avenue, were married by the Rev.
W. W. Hartman in the Methodist parsonage, Friday evening, February 15th.

The groom is an energetic young man, a graduate of the Norristown
Business College and at the present
in the real estate business in Philadelphia.
The bride was in the ranks of the Adams county school teachers for two years, but recently was one of
G. W. Weaver & Son's popular clerks
and has a host of friends.
These young people have taken up their residence in Philadelphia.

Entertained Her Class: Miss Lillie
Steinour entertained the Junior Class of the High School Friday evening at her home on South
Washington street. Miss Ethel
Weaver entertained the class at a previous time. Those present were: Misses Clara Braunreuter,

Passed Creditable Examination:
J. Donald Swope, son of Judge
Swope, who took the examination
before the Board of Law Examiners on December 4th and 5th last, to practice in the Supreme Court, received word last week that he passed very creditably. He will be admitted to the Adams County Bar on certificate at the March term of court. Mr. Swope is a brilliant young man and his success as a lawyer is assured.
Personal: Miss Ella Gilliland and niece, Miss Ella, returned last week
from a visit to Philadelphia.
John P. Rummel, son of John A.
Rummel, of this place, with W. E.
Camp and J. W. Wagstaff, have organized a clothing firm at Youngstown, Ohio, with a capital of $20,- 000. Mr. Rummel has been made manager of the company.
Charles S. Speese and H. Grant
Md., where they are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. William Hollebaugh.
Robert Sheads, the oldest native born citizen of this place, passed his 84th birthday at his "Vineyard Home" on Sunday.
Guy Grenoble, an employee of the
B. & O. car shops at Cumberland,
Md., is home with a mashed finger.
Miss Bessie Cox is visiting relatives in Lancaster.

Dr. David A. Buehler, of Harrisburg, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. F. J. Buehler, who is ill.
Edward J. Cox is visiting his mother on Baltimore street.
Paul R. Rapp has resigned his position in Philadelphia to accept a better one with the Tube Works
at McKeesport.

Miss Nellie Bream, Cumberland
month's visit to her sister, Mrs.
Rev. Mankin, at Oneonta, N. Y.
Carson Bumbaugh has secured a position in the type-writer works at Harrisburg, and has moved to that place.
Mrs. William Schwartzkopf and son, of Baltimore, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Caroline Weaver
on West Middle street.

In the Social Circle: Joseph, the interesting son of Mr. and Mrs.
John L. Kendeheart, gave a delighful "Valentine Party" to about 25 of his friends Thursday evening. Master Joseph received quite a number of beautiful Valentines from his friends.
Mrs. Hay and the Misses Danner

evening last week.

About
New York
By William Gaines
New York—Fifteen Bronx cheers!
Somebody thinks I look collegiate.
College students are discouraged from going to the public library to peruse books which may be available to them in their own school libraries. Probably this is because the huge reservoir of knowledge on Fifth avenue is so crowded most of the time.
Today I turned in cards for four philosophical treatises—dull stuff
of the sort that makes most every college course in philosophy an insufferable bore. The card taker eyed me suspiciously, then referred me to a supervisor.
"Are you a student in any college?" the supervisor asked me.
Not knowing whether to feel flattered or flattered, I confessed that my pursuit of a Ph.D. ended some years back. Then he explained the attitude toward students.
Maybe it was the books I asked

FOUNTAIN DALE
This place, which is located south of Jack's Mountain, on the Emmitsburg and Waynesboro turnpike, is great in the area which the name covers, but little, indeed, as a village. Business is represented by Martin's store, and the postoffice and Harbaugh's mills, now operated by the Martins. The location, however, is delightful, and 10,000 rippling spring creeks from the mountains north and south of the valley make the name appropriate. Raven rock, which shelters the valley on the south, is 1,290 feet above the ocean
level. Joseph Braugher was postmaster in 1837; in 1845 Reuben
Steen.

Miscellaneous Cold Spring, at Caledonia, lies in the northwestern corner of Hamiltonian township. In the last century it was known as "Sweeney's Spring," from Daniel Sweeney, who was the original occupier of the land in that vicinity. It was known long before Sweeney became the owner, and even then had a wide reputation and charmed many visitors. In 1850 a Chambersburg company purchased the tract, erected buildings and named the place Caledonia.

Curtain Calls
A play which permitted Raquel Torres only the briefest sort of bow to Broadway was one of those wet firecrackers that gives all the critics a chance to get funny.
Right up to the eleventh hour,
there was indecision about bringing the show into New York. But perhaps the crack that John Anderson
got off about it made the production worth while, after all. He said:
"By nine-fifteen, when the curtain had not yet gone up, it was not clear whether they were waiting for the mayor, or had decided upon some similar way of postponing it indefinitely."

STORIES
THE LION'S STORY
By Mary Graham Bonner
He had beautiful creases in his forehead that gave him such a wise, noble, splendid look, and his coat
was so smooth.
He gave a roar of greeting, a roar
so powerful and so magnificent that it seemed as though that roar alone
was enough to have given him the name of the King of the Beasts.
"My friends," he said, "people say all sorts of things about us."
"When we stay hidden in the jungles and refuse to walk right out in the open across the plains they say
we are really cowardly."
"But is it cowardly to be careful? Do we want to run straight into danger?"
"And, too, what chance have we against people who carry guns? We have no protection such as they have and we must do what we can."
"Others who know us better feel that we have wisdom not to let ourselves be too easy a prey."
The lion walked about a little on his soft, padded feet, and the dry grass rustled and crackled as John
and Peggy walked with him.
Then he stopped and began to roar, raising his mighty head as he did so.
From all directions came answering doads.
"What's the matter?" exclaimed
John.
"Are you asking your family to come and join you?" cried Peggy.
But the lion did not answer her.
He raised his head and roared some

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
WASTE
WHENEVER I come into my library a voice seems immediately to say:
"Don't waste a minute! Here are great minds awaiting you—the minds of age. They will answer anything you ask. They will companion you. They will lift and lead you. Don't waste a minute. Talk with whom you most desire."
And yet, how we do waste the precious hours and days. How we miss delights that could warm and inspire us, rebuild us in mind and heart—and send us out as great messengers to such as need.
I was reading a story recently that told of the workday of the president of the United States. It said that Mr. Hoover began his work at six-thirty in the morning and that his work did not end until eleven o'clock at night! It said that his average appointments alone each day were 20. And yet, there are newspaper comic artists who earn a bigger salary!
We never know when our final day will close. Let us then not waste a single minute!
It is not for ourselves alone that we work—but for the enrichment of the mind of the world. My library is a part of that rich mind. So is every lasting deed, every heroic act, every noble impulse.
When the great Cecil Rhodes was dying he exclaimed: "So much to do—so little done!" And this from a man who had stamped his powerful personality upon the great continent of Africa and which still lingers in the world.
Our only fruitful years are those into which the minimum of waste has entered.
All war is waste. Its indirect good can never be measured against its waste. It always tears down and leaves in its wake nothing but ruin, regrets and tears.
A wasted day never returns! It is forever blotted out from the sum of the days. It is as though it had never been.
I am not sure, but I believe it was Horace Mann who once said:
"County that day lost whose low descending sun Views from thy hand no worthy action done."
And the story is told by Suetonius of the Emperor Titus, who exclaimed after an evening meal with a small company: "Friends, I have lost a day." Because, as he explained, he had assisted no one that day.

Just Folks
By EDGAR A. GUEST
LOOKING ON THE BRIGHT SIDE
Of life's numerous irritations there are some I can't escape.
There are keys which I must carry 'spite their weight and bulging shape.
Since I own an automobile, in my very best attire
I expect on sad occasions to be forced to change a tire.
But they've made me give up smoking and henceforth to my delight
I shan't need a pocket lighter which refuses to ignite.
I've a fancy pocket pencil which is often out of lead.
And a fountain pen which isn't what the advertisement said.
There are certain kinds of evils which I patiently endure Such as guessing what the hour is from a watch which isn't sure.
There are countless irritations I must suffer day and night
But no more I'll lose my temper over lighters that won't light.
On the best of days I fancy must annoyances arise
That are flaws in every product which the brains of men devise.
There are shoe strings which desert me on the mornings I am late.
And my ever-ready calendar seems always out of date.
My safety razor cuts me, and my soothing lotions bite,
But I'm done with looking foolish over lighters that don't light.

BOY CRAZY

by Grace Perkins

SYNOPSIS: Marriage to Rusty Grand seems dull to Hope Ross when she remembers her elopement with Dickey Dale. She never wanted her marriage to Dickey annulled, but her father took advantage of her being under legal age and persuaded her that Dickey regretted the marriage.

Chapter 28

"I HAVEN'T ANY PRIDE"

In a desultory way Hope began to buy her own trousseau. Occasional pieces here and there. But the shopping lost all tang as Mama Ross and Goody began to take it over in an experienced manner, running all out of bounds with their ideas.

Yet Hope was happier as days went by. With a safe feeling. A quiet satisfaction in Rusty's tender possessiveness. A strange comfort in the thought that she was being owned and taken care of.

Her engagement was officially announced in September, just a few weeks before Judy's wedding was to be performed. And Hope went about with a flashlight on her finger at last, a new diamond brooch at her bosom, and a strange buzzing in her head.

And all would have been well. Very well indeed. Were it not for another newspaper announcement right alongside of her own in the Times. Another announcement that caused Hope to go weak with panic, with a painful flash of hot excitement through her blood.

Eileen Argyle, her picture beside the announcement (a nice picture of a nice, paddy-cake face), admitted that her engagement to Richard J. Hickson Dale was postponed indefinitely.

Now what difference would that make to Hope? None at all! None whatsoever! What possible concern could it be of hers?

And yet . . . There was a sharpness in Rusty's voice when he called up an hour later and asked Hope to luncheon. There was an unhappy questioning in Rusty's eyes as she sat opposite him and avoided his direct glance, smiling broadly and chatting continuously. . . . Rusty had seen it in the paper, and Rusty knew she had seen it, and Rusty wondered. . . . Poor Rusty! She mustn't let him be hurt.

Desperately Hope forced herself to be in love. Earnestly she set out to prove to everyone how truly happy she was with Rusty. Until the worried light died down from the eyes all around her that had seen the two announcements side by side in the Times. . . . And Mama, and Papa, and Goody, and Rusty were satisfied at last—and silently thankful.

Nervously she refused to set a date for her own wedding with Rusty, begging him to wait until Judy's excitement was over and she had time to think. With boundless energy Hope drew herself into the maelstrom of Judy's wedding to the boy who had cast away his E-flat saxophone and engaged a publicity expert.

And then, the night before Judy's wedding, Hope found one last item in the newspapers—merely a line in Winchell's delicious gossip column that Hickey Dale and son were "to mal-de-mer on the Paris manyana."

It struck home, that simple statement, like a bolt of lightning into Hope's unconquerable soul! It was as if she had been waiting for something just like that! Dickey was to sail on the same boat that Judy would take! The same boat—going off with his father. . . . Further arguments were useless. Hope saw that herself before three highballs and thirty cigarettes were consumed as she paced her floor.

No use trying to think things out. There wasn't any answer to all the endless questions—no use to do anything except what you want to do. What you had to do—regardless of the cost!

Quite calmly Hope made her plans. Quite calmly the next day she marched down the aisle behind Judy and Thomas Post as maid-of-honor. Without arousing the slightest suspicions, she slipped two of her own suitcases in with Judy's duffel. And in the evening with checks and passports in her purse, and Sassy under her arm, Hope got into her roadster and followed Tom Post's car into New York "to see Judy off on the boat!"

In her heart was only one wild desire. One thought that grew out of every shameful guilty feeling that beat in the back of her mind. If she could just see Dickey! And if by any chance she felt as she knew she would feel at the sight of him. . . .

Then devil take all her sins! And might everyone forgive her for the wretched treatment she was giving them. Too unspeakably bad if Rusty would be hurt, but sometimes people weren't responsible for what they do, or how they feel. . . .

With a jerk, Hope stopped her car in a garage near the wharves and fled out to the curb to call a taxi. Down to the boat she went, edging her way through the crowds, inquiring where Judy's stateroom might be.

And suddenly, just when she least expected it, Hope caught sight of Dickey. Right in the center of the grand salon, which was crowded with excited voyagers and their friends, she caught sight of him and stopped short. Stared over at the tall, erect figure, the unmistakable broad shoulders, the sternly cut profile of the tanned and handsome face, the smoothly combed shock of curly hair. . . . Heard him laugh. . . . And caught swiftly at a chair beside her to steady the sweeping, glorious, dizzying feeling that came over her. . . . She did feel the same—only more so!

Still she stared, unable to move, until as if drawn by a magnet, Dickey glanced about and recognized her. She saw a jagged scar across his right cheek and jaw, and wondered if it were the result of a football accident. . . . There was surprise, and then a tightening of his lips and a calculated and determined indifference in Dickey's glance. . . .

In a second he had turned away, and at the same moment Hope saw Dickey's back. "He doesn't want to recognize me," she mumbled to herself excitedly. "But I won't mind. I won't let it matter. He's made up his mind not to recognize me. But he'll recognize me all right before the voyage is over!"

"She turned swiftly and wended her way to the corridor of Judy's stateroom. "I haven't any pride," she kept telling herself. "But I don't care. I have got pride. Too much pride not to make one big whale of a whack for love."

She found Judy's room and listened to herself saying good-bys all over again. With the last following blast of the ship's siren, Hope left Judy, gave her one last hug of good-bye blessing. But she didn't get off the boat. Small matter how her heart was beating. She just wouldn't get off the boat.

Carlisle—Two new members were elected to the board of trustees of Dickinson college, tentative plans and arrangements for the observance of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the college were laid and several recommendations approved by the board at the regular mid-winter meeting held in Union league, Philadelphia. Boyd Lee Spahr, of Philadelphia, president of the board of trustees, presided.

DAUPHIN COUNTY

FEWER APPLICANTS FOR NATURALIZATION

Harrisburg—A drop in the number of applicants for naturalization in Dauphin county is partially ascribed to the limited number of aliens arriving here by William S. Middleton, deputy prothonotary in charge of naturalization in Dauphin county.

Fourteen persons, the smallest number to apply for citizenship in more than twelve years, will appear in Dauphin county naturalization court on May 3. Ten represent new applications and four continued cases.

FRANKLIN COUNTY

CHICKENS UNHURT DURING FIRE

Chambersburg—Forty-five hundred chickens in a battery brooder building operated by J. Beam Wingerd at the rear of his home, 265 South Second street, escaped serious injury early Saturday morning when the building in which the chickens is located caught fire.

The fire was confined to the roof of the building at the point of emergence of the flue of the heating plant. Damage was estimated at $150. The building was insured. Mr. Wingerd said Monday morning.

DICKENS AHEAD OF TIMES, SAYS SPEAKER

Waynesboro—"Dickens was fifty years ahead of his time," stated Dr. C. H. Gordonier, former president of Millersburg state teachers' college, in his address to the Waynesboro teachers at the closing session of institute Saturday afternoon in the high school building.

Doctor Gordonier spoke of "Dickens as an Educator," and related how Dickens, the famous author, was so far advanced. He told how Dickens' writings pleaded for the betterment of evil conditions existing in the schools of England at that time. He visualized the needs of the child, Doctor Gordonier said, and was almost fifty years ahead of his time as an educator.

NEED $125 TO SAVE BALL FIELD

Waynesboro—Unless $125 can be raised by Saturday there will likely be no twilight baseball in Waynesboro in 1932 or in many years to come.

This was the sum and substance of a story related by officers of the Southern Franklin County Twilight Baseball league.

On Saturday the grandstand and fence at the E. B. field, South Broad street, the scene of football and baseball in Waynesboro for many years, will be sold. There is a buyer waiting for it.

FREDERICK COUNTY

BRIDGE PROJECTS UNDER WAY

Fredrick—The new Monocacy river bridge at Ceresville is about half completed, and preliminaries for the construction of two other Frederick county bridges under the direction of the state roads commission have begun following award of contracts last week. One bridge is a double span steel structure to replace Miller's bridge over the Monocacy on the road between Rocky Ridge and Detour, and the other is a smaller bridge of concrete and steel to be erected in place of the present bridge over Fishing creek at Lewistown.

TWO HURT WHEN CAR HITS POLE

Fredrick—Two men were injured, one seriously, when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a pole on the Jefferson state road, about three-fourths of a mile northeast of Steiner's bridge, early Sunday morning. Both were taken to the Frederick city hospital, where an examination revealed that one suffered a fractured skull and the other sustained painful lacerations about the face and hands.

Kent Howery, about 25, Christiansburg, Virginia, had his skull fractured, and Allen Jones, 25, of the same place, sustained lacerations.

The bullet, entering the pane about an inch above the motorman's head, showered him with glass but he was uninjured. An investigation was immediately started.

WASHINGTON COUNTY

"GLASS CUTTER" STARTS AGAIN

Hagerstown—The "glass cutter" went to work again Monday night after a few days' vacation and broke into and ransacked the home of William L. Neubert, 175 Summit avenue, some time between 8 and 9 o'clock.

Nearly neighbors reported hearing a crash shortly after 8 o'clock but paid little attention. Later Edward Knoble discovered a rear window had been broken and notified police.

RAILROAD PLANS NEW WAREHOUSE

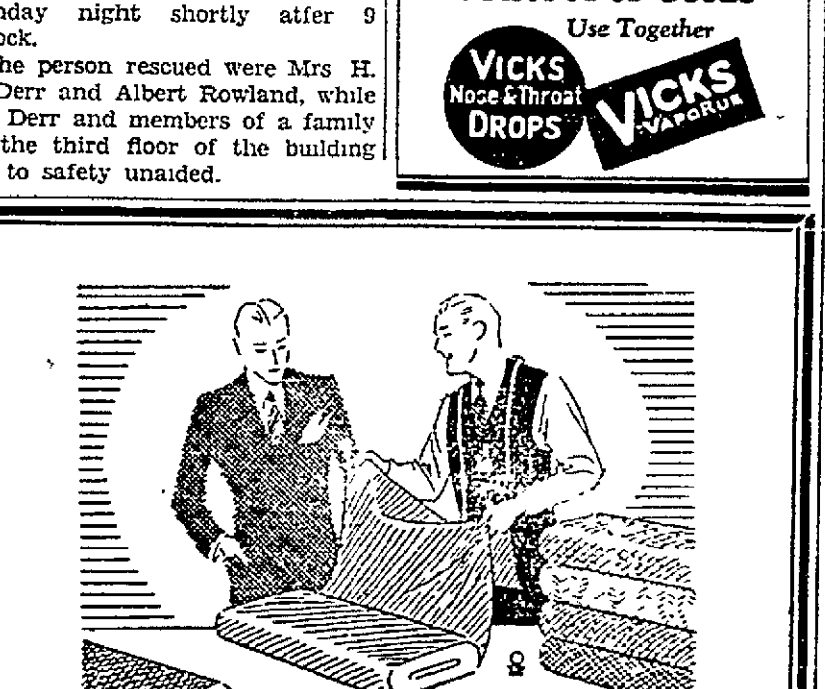

Hagerstown—Plans are nearing completion by the Western Maryland Railroad company for the erection of a concrete block warehouse on the site of the building formerly occupied by the Lowry Produce company, destroyed by fire several years ago.

While plans have not yet been entirely completed, A. M. Smith, superintendent, said the building would be a fireproof structure and the possibility of an office on the second floor.

LADDER USED IN RESCUE

Hagerstown—Two persons were carried by ladder to safety from the second floor and members of two families were forced to flee as fire swept through the incinerator flue of the Schlosser apartment building, East avenue and Locust street, Monday night shortly after 9 o'clock.

The person rescued were Mrs. H. A. Derr and Albert Rowland, while Mr. Derr and members of a family on the third floor of the building ran to safety unaided.

Seeks Magazines For Labor Camps

Public contributions of magazines both old and new will be accepted at the state employment offices in Pittsburgh, Altoona, Harrisburg, New Castle, and Erie, for distribution to state labor camps at Pymatuning Dam and other parts of the state. These men employed at road work and on the reservoir have no other form of amusement on rainy days and evenings. Some of the camps are miles from the nearest town.

About 450 men living at the six camps in Fayette, Washington, Blair, Westmoreland, Clearfield and Jefferson counties are working on the road. The Pymatuning Dam projects employs more than 350 men living at the camp.

Several hundred magazines have been sent out to the men by employees of the department of labor and industry at Harrisburg but many more are needed.

With Us Daily

And when he came to his disciples,
he saw a great multitude about
them, and the scribes questioning
them.

And straightway all the people,
when they beheld him, were greatly amazed, and running to him
saluted him.

And he asked the scribes, What
question ye with them?

And one of the multitude answered and said, Master, I have brought unto thee my son, which hath a dumb spirit.

And whosoever he taketh him,
he teareth him; and he foameth,
and gnasheth with his teeth, and pineth away; and I spake to thy
out; and they could not.

He answered him, and said, O
faithless generation, how long
shall I be with you? how long shall I suffer you? bring him unto me.

And they brought him unto
him; and when he saw him, straightway the spirit tore him;
and he fell on the ground, and wallowed foaming.

And he asked his father, How long is ago since this came unto him? And he said, Of a child.

And oftentimes it hath cast him
into the fire, and into the waters,
to destroy him; but if thou canst
do anything, have compassion on us, and help us.

Jesus said unto him, If thou
canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth.

And straightway the father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe; help thou
mine unbelief.

Wedding Bells: Basehoar—Holtz-

worth: Paul G. Basehoar, son of
Geo. P. Basehoar, and Miss Eva R.
Holtzworth, daughter of Mrs. Josephine Holtzworth, of Steinwehr
avenue, were married by the Rev.
W. W. Hartman in the Methodist parsonage, Friday evening, February 15th.

The groom is an energetic young man, a graduate of the Norristown
Business College and at the present
in the real estate business in Philadelphia.

The bride was in the ranks of the Adams county school teachers for two years, but recently was one of
G. W. Weaver & Son's popular clerks
and has a host of friends.

These young people have taken
up their residence in Philadelphia.

Entertained Her Class: Miss Lillie

Class of the High School Friday
evening at her home on South
Washington street. Miss Ethel
Weaver entertained the class at a
were: Misses Clara Braunreuter, Amy Sheads, Hattie Hennigh, Esther Speese, Janet Marshall, Elsie Yeagy, Mary Rowe, Ethel Weaver,
Mary Withrow, Effie Noel, Janie Quimby, Goldie Widder, Mary Bay-ly and Lillie Steinour, Messrs. John Fiscel, Calvin Hartman, Luther Mc-Donnell, Stewart and Earl Rudisill, Robert Currens, Calvin Cluck, Howard Garvin, John Blocher, Charles Culp, Harry Hoffman and Gilbert Dickson.

Passed Creditable Examination:

J. Donald Swope, son of Judge
Swope, who took the examination
before the Board of Law Examiners
on December 4th and 5th last, to practice in the Supreme Court, received word last week that he passed very creditably. He will be admitted to the Adams County Bar
on certificate at the March term of court. Mr. Swope is a brilliant young man and his success as a lawyer is assured.

Personal: Miss Ella Gilliland and niece, Miss Ella, returned last week
from a visit to Philadelphia.

John P. Rummel, son of John A.
Rummel, of this place, with W. E.
Camp and J. W. Wagstaff, have organized a clothing firm at Youngstown, Ohio, with a capital of $20-000. Mr. Rummel has been made
manager of the company.

Walker left Monday for Annapolis, Md., where they are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. William Hollebaugh.

Robert Sheads, the oldest native born citizen of this place, passed his 84th birthday at his "Vineyard Home" on Sunday.

Gay Grenoble, an employee of the
B. & O. car shops at Cumberland,
Md., is home with a mashed finger.
Miss Bessie Cox is visiting relatives in Lancaster.

Dr. David A. Buehler, of Harrisburg, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. F. J. Buehler, who is ill.

Edward J. Cox is visiting his mother on Baltimore street.

Paul R. Enpp has resigned his position in Philadelphia to accept a better one with the Tube Works
at McKeesport.

month's visit to her sister, Mrs.
Rev. Mankin, at Oneonta, N. Y.

Carson Bumbaugh has secured a position in the type-writer works at
place.

Mrs. William Schwartzkopf and son, of Baltimore, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Caroline Weaver
on West Middle street.

In the Social Circle: Joseph, the interesting son of Mr. and Mrs.
John L. Kendeheart, gave a delicious "Valentine Party" to about 25 of his friends Thursday evening. Master Joseph received quite a number of beautiful Valentines from his friends.

Mrs. Hay and the Misses Danner entertained a few friends Thursday evening.

Mrs. Samuel E. Waltman gave a tea to a number of friends at her home on East Middle street one evening last week.

About New York

By William Gaines
New York.—Fifteen Bronx cheers!
Somebody thinks I look collegiate.
College students are discouraged
from going to the public library to peruse books which may be available to them in their own school
libraries. Probably this is because the huge reservoir of knowledge on Fifth avenue is so crowded most of the time.

Today I turned in cards for four philosophical treatises—dull stuff
of the sort that makes most every college course in philosophy an insufferable bore. The card taker eyed me suspiciously, then referred
me to a supervisor.

"Are you a student in any college?" the supervisor asked me.

Not knowing whether to feel flattered or flattered, I confessed that my pursuit of a Ph.D. ended some years back. Then he explained the attitude toward students.

Maybe it was the books I asked for.

And once again came the answering roars.

There was something completely thrilling about the scene. Dark clouds were in the sky, the dry grass waved in the wind that had come up. It looked as though there were going to be a heavy storm.

And the lion roared and the answering roars grew nearer and nearer and nearer.

HISTORY OF ADAMS COUNTY

A Chronological Review Of Things That Have Gone Before, And The Trials And Tribulations Of Our Ancestors, As Published Serially For The Benefit Of Gettysburg Times' Readers.

FOUNTAIN DALE

This place, which is located south of Jack's Mountain, on the Emmitsburg and Waynesboro turnpike, is great in the area which the name covers, but little, indeed, as a village. Business is represented by Martin's store, and the postoffice and Harbaugh's mills, now operated by the Martins. The location, however, is delightful, and 10,000 rippling spring
creeks from the mountains north
and south of the valley make the name appropriate. Raven rock,
which shelters the valley on the south, is 1,290 feet above the ocean
level. Joseph Braugher was postmaster in 1837; in 1845 Reuben
Steen.

Methodist Episcopal church—Wesley chapel, of this denomination, was built at Fountain Dale in 1857.

The Reformed church and the Dunkard church buildings are located a short distance south of this settlement, in Liberty township.

Cemeteries

Near to Fountain Dale is the new Methodist Episcopal cemetery, to which removals from the old cemetery near the Methodist Episcopal church were made some years ago;
while west of the Reformed church is the old cemetery of the district.

Several bold eminences, other than the peaks of Jack's Mountain, for which subjected me to this examination rather than any rakish rah rah demeanor. Which serves me right for wanting to look into such tomes when I didn't have to.

Curtain Calls

A play which permitted Raquel
Torres only the briefest sort of how to Broadway was one of those wet firecrackers that gives all the critics a chance to get funny.

Right up to the eleventh hour
there was indecision about bringing the show into New York. But perhaps the crack that John Anderson
got off about it made the production worth while, after all. He said:
"By nine-fifteen, when the curtain did not yet go up, it was not clear whether they were waiting for the mayor, or had decided upon some similar way of postponing it
indefinitely."

THE BUILDING OF THE FAIRFIELD

branch of the "Tapeworm Railroad" is only a matter of a little time.
The road was surveyed by Joseph S.
Gitt, and in January, 1886, a proposition was made to the people of Fairfield by the Hanover Junction, Hanover and Gettysburg Railroad company, that if they would furnish 6,000 good ties, the right of way, and $3,500 in money, they would build the road.

SUNDOWN STORIES

THE LION'S STORY
By Mary Graham Bonner
He had beautiful creases in his forehead that gave him such a wise,
noble, splendid look, and his coat
was so smooth.

He gave a roar of greeting, a roar
so powerful and so magnificent that
it seemed as though that roar alone
was enough to have given him the name of the King of the Beasts.

"My friends," he said, "people
say all sorts of things about us.
"When we stay hidden in the jungles and refuse to walk right out in the open across the plains they say
we are really cowardly.
"But is it cowardly to be careful?
Do we want to run straight into danger?"

"And, too, what chance have we against people who carry guns?
We have no protection such as they have and we must do what we can.
"Others who know us better feel that we have wisdom not to let ourselves be too easy a prey."

The lion walked about a little on
his soft, padded feet, and the dry
grass rustled and crackled as John
and Peggy walked with him.

Then he stopped and began to roar, raising his mighty head as he did so.

From all directions came answering doads.

"What's the matter?" exclaimed
John.

"Are you asking your family to come and join you?" cried Peggy.

But the lion did not answer her.

TODAY'S TALK

WASTE
WHENEVER I come into my library a voice seems immediately to say:
"Don't waste a minute! Here are great minds awaiting you—the minds of ages. They will answer anything you ask. They will companion
you. They will lift and lead you. Don't waste a minute! Talk with whom you most desire."

And yet, how we do waste the precious hours and days. How we miss delights that could warm and inspire us, rebuild us in mind and heart—
and send us out as great messengers to such as need.

I was reading a story recently that told of the workday of the president of the United States. It said that Mr. Hoover began his work at six-thirty in the morning and that his work did not end until eleven o'clock at night! It said that his average appointments alone each day were 20. And yet, there are newspaper comic artists who earn a bigger salary!

We never know when our final day will close. Let us then not waste a single minute!

It is not for ourselves alone that we work—but for the enrichment of the mind of the world. My library is a part of that rich mind. So is every lasting deed, every heroic act, every noble impulse.

When the great Cecil Rhodes was dying he exclaimed: "So much to do—so little done!" And this from a man who had stamped his powerful personality upon the great continent of Africa and which still lingers in the world.

Our only fruitful years are those into which the minimum of waste has entered.

All war is waste. Its indirect good can never be measured against its waste. It always tears down and leaves in its wake nothing but ruin, regrets and tears.

of the days. It is as though it had never been.

I am not sure, but I believe it was Horace Mann who once said:
"County that day lost whose low descending sun Views from thy hand had no worthy action done."

And the story is told by Suetonius of the Emperor Titus, who exclaimed after an evening meal with a small company: "Friends, I have lost a day." Because, as he explained, he had assisted no one that day.

original opinion that the damage suffered by the Akron yesterday can be repaired in six weeks.

Washington, Feb. 24 (AP).—Fear that the airship Akron might have been irreparably damaged when she struck the ground at Lakehurst yesterday was expressed today by Representative McClintic, chairman of the house sub-committee which witnessed the accident Monday.

SCIENCE SAYS IT CAN'T BE— BUT MANY TRY

Can't Trisect An Angle With Unmarked Rule And Compass.

By F. B. Colton
(Associated Press Science Writer)
Washington (AP)—Lure of "unsolvable" draws a never-discouraged stream of enthusiasts to try things that most authorities say can't be done—trisecting the angle and squaring the circle.

Trisecting an angle means dividing it into three equal parts with the aid of an unmarked rule and compass alone. Squaring the circle means drawing a square exactly equal in area to any given circle.

Believed Impossible
Persons who try to solve these problems are "Don Quixotes" of pencil and paper in the view of orthodox mathematicians, battling two windmills that long ago were proved unconquerable.

"When mathematicians speak of the problem of trisecting the angle, they mean dividing the angle into three equal parts with the aid of an unmarked rule and compass only. It is this particular trisection problem that has been proved unsolvable," says Dr. Charles F. Roos, member of the American Mathematical society and permanent secretary of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"It is perfectly possible to trisect an angle by the use of special methods, such as a marked rule or a rule with a hole in one end. Such methods of trisecting an angle have been known since before the time of Christ.

"Equations that result from trying to trisect an angle with unmarked rule and compass are cubic equations, or equations of the third degree. But only equations of the first and second degree can be solved with the unmarked rule and compass. This is the basis of one of many proofs that trisecting an angle by that method is impossible."

The officers of the American Mathematical society, Dr. R. G. D. Richardson, has made the following statement about attempt to trisect the angle:

"The question is closed except for cranks who are determined to amuse themselves with impossibilities. Should a solution now be found it would be as revolutionary to mathematical thinking as a demonstration that on alternate Thursday afternoon two plus two is five."

Angle trisection in the geometrical sense is in the catalog of absurdities.

"Squaring the circle," Dr. Roos declares, "also has been proved impossible. The reason for this is that π , the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter (approximately 3.1416) is an irrational number—one which can NOT be expressed as the ratio of two integers or whole numbers."

"In popular language the value of π never can be determined exactly. When carried out as far as 500 decimal places, π still does not come out even."

The fact that π is an irrational number constitutes proof that a circle never can be squared with absolute exactness. A circle can be squared with very close approximation, however, by carrying out the value of π to more and more decimal places."

New Books
By Ware Torrey
New York—Clarence Darrow's half-century career in the courts has been so inseparably linked with widely publicized cases that his autobiography, "The Story of My Life," becomes immediately a summary of some of America's most famous criminal trials.

The defender of Eugene V. Debs, William D. "Big Bill" Haywood, the McNamara brothers, Leopold-Loeb and the theory of evolution sketches his own history in terms of events that successively monopolized headlines throughout the world.

Darrow stepped out of the role of general attorney for a large railroad to defend Debs, who ironically had been indicted for conspiracy in connection with a railroad labor fight, the Pullman strike. Thereafter he remained in the thick of the bitter fight for the organized workers.

In describing the Scopes evolution trial at Dayton, Tennessee, Darrow reaches the climax of his story, striking vigorously at his opponents and particularly at William Jennings Bryan, with whom he broke after twice stumping the country in behalf of the Commoner's presidential aspirations.

Much of the autobiography is devoted to exhaustive argument for a changed conception of the crime problem, prohibition, religious and court reforms.

The New Cabell
The first book by James Branch Cabell to be published under the name Branch Cabell, "These Restless Heads," brings the relieved opinion to his readers that although Manual and Poitessine may be left forever in the past, there will be no vital change in the Cabell angle of observation or technique.

One of the outstanding spring novels, Claude Houghton's "Chaos Is Come Again," offers an excellent estimate of post-war England through the medium of a typical English family.

Houghton makes substantial points about the changes in English tradition, life and thought, and at the same time develops an absorbing plot. The life of an individualistic family, the Petersleys, centering in their home, Greystones, progresses with warm characterization, good conversation and dramatic and clear-cut situations.

Psychoanalyzing America
In "Emotional Currents in American History" J. H. Denison surveys the country from a fresh tangent. The book is a valuable study of the basic emotions that have vitalized America's development.

Books of this week include Storm Jameson's "That Was Yesterday," a new presentation of the problem of struggle between the claims of marriage and a career; "Broken Arcs" by Erika Zastrow, a novel of character, development and strong objectives, understandingly treated, and Helen Ashton's "Bricks and Mortar," the story of an architect who constructed his own life together with his buildings.

New York—Anne Parrish draws character with a fine pen dipped in satire. In "Loads of Love" she shows a group of people, largely exasperating people, through conversation rather than direct description.

Bessie Plummer, insufferably dull but equipped with energy which drives that dullness like a dust storm into other people's lives, dominates the book like a stupid and complacent fate.

Bessie throws together two sensitive persons, Katherine and Edward, an artist and a novelist, and makes their lives miserable with a collection of boring and inquisitive house-guests. Bessie's friends are shown with artistry; they are humanly exact, well-meaning and supremely irritating. One reads about them with fascination, and would walk miles to avoid them.

Despite interference, Katherine and Edward fall in love. Whereupon Bessie brings in Jenny, a country girl, who interests Edward in spite of his loyalty to Katherine.

Well Picked Phrases
Anne Parrish's high art lies in her selection of the perfect phrases, trite and shallow, with which Bessie and her friends express themselves. From scenes with the intelligent and cultured characters, the book returns inevitably to Bessie, her incessant wanting to help people, the "loads of love" that weigh her down, and her unforgettably wrong remarks.

"Life and Andrew Otway," by Neil Bell tells with lingering detail the career of an eccentric promoter who surges from one enterprise to another with restless vitality.

Story Of Three Days
In "The Birthday" Samuel Rogers shows from a perspective of three days Katherine Wilder at 19, at 22 and at 34, draws her moods and character with clarity, and offers a comparison between her life with Albert whom she marries and the life she might have had if she had married Gabriel.

Anne Green with "Marietta" presents a forceful and magnetic girl, and the widespread effects of her influence.

Sir Oliver Lodge in an autobiography, "Past Years," relates the influential experiences of early years and later progress. One of the world's foremost physicists, a scientist who has spent a long life devoted to development of scientific facts, he tells how he became convinced through physical research that, to him, spiritualism also is fact.

Catherine C. Coxey of Massillon, Ohio, granddaughter of "General" Jacob S. Coxey, aspires to nomination as state representative on a platform of unemployment legislation and elimination of "chair warmers."

Federal Buildings To Be Built Soon

Treasury officials in charge of public works told Representative Boland, of Scranton, they expected to place the $225,000 project on the market and receive bids on it within the next months. Specifications for the building, to house both the postoffice and a federal court room, are being completed now.

Several changes in plans for the structure occasioned delays in getting the project started.

A complaint against the slow process was sent Boland by Federal Judge Johnson, of Lewisburg, one of the two sitting jurists of the Middle Pennsylvania judicial district. Johnson wrote Boland the town, which is one of the sitting places of the court, is "sorely in need" of a building for both postoffice and court house purposes and asked that it be completed in time for the January, 1933, session of the tribunal.

DAIRYMEN SEE ICE SHORTAGE

Cooling Systems Are Being Considered To Replace Ice.

Harrisburg (AP)—Pennsylvania dairymen have an eye cocked weatherward these days and not without reason.

Usually mid-February finds ice houses packed and streams still frozen over. This year saw dust piles are waiting in vain to be used in storing the ice against mid-summer heat, and streams are running high through much of the state from mid-winter rains.

The situation with the dairymen is acute, for few of them have the facilities for the manufacture of artificial ice, and depend on the stored ice from winter for the cooling and preservation of their milk in mid-summer.

Thousands of tons of ice are stored throughout the rural districts for use in milk cooling, but the localities in central Pennsylvania in which ice could be cut this year are few and far between.

Trucks collecting milk from the producers and taking it to receiving stations probably will make a double trip during the summer if there is lack of weather cold enough to produce an ice crop. The milk could be gathered on one trip and ice delivered from cars on the other. Artificial ice in all probability would have to be used.

The same problem received consideration at Scranton early this month where ice dealers in the anthracite region called a special meeting to consider the situation. In that section, the passage of January without the usual ice harvest created great concern. A survey revealed that the combined storage totalled only 100,000 tons and arrangements were made to have ice shipped if sudden, continued cold weather did not produce the necessary supply. Dealers, while expressing confidence that the crop would be forthcoming, learned the ice layer on the Pocono lakes, the principal source of supply for the area, was only three inches thick as compared with the practical average of 14 inches.

Some residents of the north central part of the state have recalled that about 35 years ago there was such a winter, and during the following summer ice was shipped from Nova Scotia for sale in the larger towns. The smaller towns then did without, but the daily business at that time was not engaging the attention of so many farmers as now.

Packed in saw dust in the small ice houses, the losses during the early summer as a rule are surprisingly small.

Cheap cooling systems are being considered by some far-sighted milk producers, already looking forward in an iceless summer. Some of them have figured that by using insulator cooling tanks they can utilize spring water, which is cool enough when it comes from the springs, but soon warms up when put in tanks which are not insulated.

CHAMP MILER RUNS IN BOOTS

Gene Venzke, Mile Record Holder, Runs 10 Miles A Day In Hobnails.

Pottstown (AP)—Gene Venzke, the boy who says he'd "rather run than eat," trained himself to break the world one-mile indoor record by running ten miles a day in hobnail boots.

Venzke, who hung up a record of four minutes eleven and two fifth seconds for the mile at the millrose games in New York February 6, developed speed and endurance by running five miles each way to and from his work in Colebrookdale. He didn't realize then, about five years ago, that he was laying the foundation for record breaking track performances, but he knew that he enjoyed running.

"You run the hardest when you lose a race," he says. The hardest race he ever ran, he explains, was the mile at the Meadowbrook games in Philadelphia last year when he was beaten by Ray Conger, of Chicago, and Carl Coan, of the University of Pennsylvania.

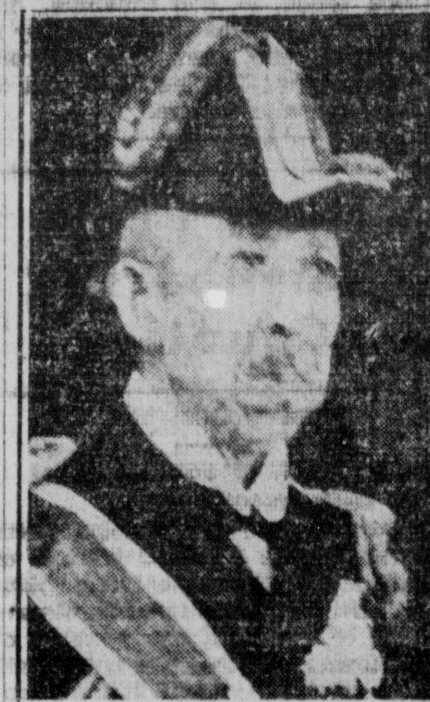

Venzke always wanted to be a runner, he admits, but never thought he was "good enough." He started to run back and forth to work after he won his first race, in 1925—a cross country run staged at Reading which finished on the football field between the halves of an Albright-Temple game.

"It was after that," he says, "that I started to run back and forth to work with a prayer on my lips that I might make a showing in big competition."

"I trained and trained and entered race after race. Each time I could feel myself getting better, even though I didn't win. I loved to run; and even if I hadn't been successful in a single race, I imagine I'd still be doing the same amount of training."

The day after his victory in New York, when here to rest, he donned spikes and track suit and went to the Hill school track "for a few turns around."

SEED SAMPLES REVEAL MANY CONTAIN WEEDS

State Botanist Says Poor Seed Is "Dear At Any Price."

Harrisburg (AP)—After supervising the collection and testing of thousands of seed samples in enforcing the Pennsylvania seed law, Dr. F. M. Gress, state botanist, is convinced that poor seed, whether for the garden or the field, is "dear at any price."

Advising against the purchase of seed just because the price is low, Doctor Gress said:

"Just recently our laboratory analyzed such a sample and found that almost one-tenth of it was weed seeds. This seed should not be used, even if it cost nothing. Weeds will be introduced which will cause more injury than the seed is worth."

"One can not tell definitely by sight whether seed will germinate or not. Something may have injured or killed the tiny young plant within the seed. Therefore, all seed should be tested before sowing."

"There are so many simple ways to test seeds for germination that one need only mention the rag-doll and the moist blotting paper methods. Any farmer can make a simple test for such seeds as wheat, corn, clover, alfalfa, and timothy. Some of the smaller grass seeds, such as red top, blue grass and a few others are a little more difficult to test. If he can not make his own tests he should examine the tags carefully to see what the germination test given by the seedman shows. Let your slogan be 'select for best seed and always test for germination.'"

Two tons of certified tomato seed were produced in Pennsylvania last year, the bulk of it being shipped during the winter to tomato growers in Florida, Texas and other southern states. K. W. Laurer, pathologist of the Pennsylvania bureau of plant industry, reports.

Of the 138 acres entered for certification in 1931, almost 102 acres passed final field inspection, compared with 250 acres entered and only 56 acres certified in 1930. The improvement of the seed entered last year over the crop entered the previous year was considerable both as to type of fruit produced and freedom from disease. The crop as a whole suffered more from the effects of the dry weather in 1931 than the year before but the fruit produced was uniform both in external shape and internal structure.

PHILADELPHIA LEADS
Washington (AP)—Philadelphia is the third largest motorboating center in the country. A total of 15,685 of such craft were registered at the beginning of the year from Philadelphia with the department of commerce. New York and Tampa led the Pennsylvania city.

EAGER TO TELL ABOUT HER STOMACH

"I want to tell others about my experience with Pape's Diapiesin," says Mrs. B. Eastman, 1200 California St., Denver, Colo. "I tried a lot of things for my indigestion, but none of them did any good. Then a friend persuaded me to take a few tablets of this wonderful preparation. Now I even eat cabbage without any distress afterwards. It used to cause real suffering. I am not nearly so nervous as I used to be; feel much stronger and better in every way."

Few advertisements in your newspaper start that way. Yet most of them are just as personal, and almost as promising.

Manufacturers and merchants must know your needs and wants, or go out of business. They must know, for instance, that about the first of next month you'll be very much interested in a new hat, or a new lamp, or new towels. They must foresee your wishes—and have what you'll want when you want it.

And they do—constantly striving to suit, at the lowest possible prices. Then telling you in advertising of the gifts they have brought from the far corners of the earth, to please Your Royal Highness.

Read the advertisements in this paper. They are addressed to you—personally. They bring you news of better things to have and easier ways to live. Intimate news, of immediate interest.

BUREAU AIDS
DISABLED MEN

Physically Handicapped Employees Have Proven Unusually Good Workers.

Despite the present unemployment among able-bodied workers, jobs were found for twenty-four physically handicapped persons during December and January, according to the report from the bureau of rehabilitation, to Dr. A. M. Northrup, secretary of the department of labor and industry. In a number of cases the services of the bureau involved the purchase of artificial appliances, training for a new type of employment, or selling an employer the idea of employing a physically handicapped person.

Employers have come to realize that the disabled worker makes a good employee," said Mark Walter, recently appointed head of the bureau of rehabilitation. "He generally sticks to his job and makes every effort to succeed. From the standpoint of morale alone, it has been found that the interest, initiative and stability of a handicapped person on the job far exceeds that of a normal person in many cases. Realizing his handicap, the man usually puts forth an extra effort to compensate for the physical deficiency. It is not charity, but good business to employ such a person. The state as an employer has found that in nine cases out of ten the handicapped person fills the job equally as well as an able-bodied person, provided the work is of the type suited to the individual's capabilities."

Can't Trisect An Angle With Unmarked Rule And Compass.

By F. B. Colton
(Associated Press Science Writer)
Washington (AP)—Lure of "solving the unsolvable" draws a never-discouraged stream of enthusiasts to try things that most authorities say can't be done—trisecting the angle and squaring the circle.

Trisecting an angle means dividing it into three equal parts with the aid of an unmarked rule and compass alone. Squaring the circle means drawing a square exactly equal in area to any given circle.

Believed Impossible
Persons who try to solve these problems are "Don Quixotes" of pencil and paper in the view of orthodox mathematicians, battling two windmills that long ago were proved unconquerable.

"When mathematicians speak of the problem of trisecting the angle, they mean dividing the angle into three equal parts with the aid of an unmarked rule and compass only. It is this particular trisection problem that has been proved unsolvable," says Dr. Charles F. Ross, member of the American Mathematical society and permanent secretary of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"It is perfectly possible to trisect an angle by the use of special methods, such as a marked rule or a rule with a hole in one end. Such methods of trisecting an angle have been known since before the time of Christ.

"Equations that result from trying to trisect an angle with unmarked rule and compass are cubic equations, or equations of the third degree. But only equations of the first and second degree can be solved with the unmarked rule and compass. This is the basis of one of many proofs that trisecting an angle by that method is impossible."

Officers' Statement
The society of the American Mathematical society, Dr. R. G. D. Richardson, has made the following statement about attempt to trisect the angle:

"The question is closed except for cranks who are determined to amuse themselves with impossibilities. Should a solution now be found it would be as revolutionary to mathematical thinking as a demonstration that on alternate Thursday afternoon two plus two is five.

Angle trisection in the geometrical sense is in the catalog of absurdities.

"Squaring the circle," Dr. Ross declares, "also has been proved impossible. The reason for this is that Pi, the ratio of the circumference of a circle to its diameter (approximately 3.1416) is an irrational number—one which can NOT be expressed as the ratio of two integers or whole numbers.

"In popular language the value of Pi never can be determined exactly. When carried out as far as 500 decimal places, Pi still does not come out even.

"The fact that Pi is an irrational number constitutes proof that a circle never can be squared with absolute exactness. A circle can be squared with very close approximation, however, by carrying out the value of Pi to more and more decimal places."

New Books

By Ware Torrey
New York—Clarence Darrow's half-century career in the courts has been so inseparably linked with widely publicized cases that his autobiography, "The Story of My Life," becomes immediately a summary of some of America's most famous criminal trials.

The defender of Eugene V. Debs, William D. "Big Bill" Haywood, the McNamara brothers, Leopold-Loeb and the theory of evolution sketches his own history in terms of events that successfully monopolized headlines throughout the world.

Darrow stepped out of the role of general attorney for a large railroad to defend Debs, who ironically had been indicted for conspiracy in connection with a railroad labor fight, the Pullman strike. Thereafter he remained in the thick of the bitter fight for the organized workers.

In describing the Scopes evolution trial at Dayton, Tennessee, Darrow reaches the climax of his story, striking vigorously at his opponents and particularly at William Jennings Bryan, with whom he broke after twice stamping the country in behalf of the Commonwealth's presidential aspirations.

Much of the autobiography is devoted to exhaustive argument for a changed conception of the crime problem, prohibition, relations and court reforms.

The New Cabell
The first book by James Branch Cabell to be published under the name Branch Cabell, "These Restless Heads," brings the relieved conviction to his readers that although Manual and Poletesme may be left forever in the past, there will be no vital change in the Cabell angle of observation or technique.

In company with "These Restless Heads" there is published a biography, "James Branch Cabell" by Carl Van Doren, which is an appreciative and incisive analysis of the writer and his work.

One of the outstanding spring novels, Claude Houghton's "Chaos Is Come Again," offers an excellent estimate of post-war England through the medium of a typical English family.

Houghton makes substantial points about the changes in English tradition, life and thought, and at the same time develops an absorbing plot. The life of an individualistic family, the Petersleys, centers in their home. Grey-stones, progresses with warm characterization, good conversation and dramatic and clear-cut situations.

Psychoanalyzing America
In "Emotional Currents in American History," J. H. Denison surveys the country from a fresh tangent. The book is a valuable study of the basic emotions that have vitalized America's development.

Books of this week include Storm Jameson's "That Was Yesterday," a new presentation of the problem of struggle between the claims of marriage and a career; "Broken Arcs" by Erika Zastrow, a novel of character, development and strong objectives, understandingly treated; and Helen Ashton's "Bricks and Mortar," the story of an architect who constructed his own life together with his buildings.

New York—Anne Parrish draws character with a fine pen dipped in satire. In "Lords of Love" she shows a group of people, largely exasperating people, through conversation rather than direct description.

Bessie Plummer, insufferably dull but equipped with energy which drives that dullness like a dust storm into other people's lives, dominates the book like a stupid and complacent fate.

Bessie, throws together two sensitive persons, Katherine and Edward, an artist and a novelist, and makes their lives miserable with a collection of boring and inquisitive house guests. Bessie's friends are shown with artistry; they are humanly exact, well-meaning and supremely irritating. One reads about them with fascination, and would walk miles to avoid them.

Despite interference, Katherine and Edward fall in love. Whereupon Bessie brings in Jenny, a country girl, who interests Edward in spite of his loyalty to Katherine.

Well Picked Phrases
Anne Parrish's high art lies in her selection of the perfect phrases, trite and shallow, with which Bessie and her friends express themselves. From scenes with the intelligent and cultured characters, the book returns inevitably to Bessie, her incessant wanting to help people, the "loads of love" that weigh her down, and her unforgettably wrong remarks.

"Life and Andrew Otway," by Nell Bell tells with lingering detail the career of an eccentric promoter who surges from one enterprise to another with restless vitality.

Story of Three Days
In "The Birthday" Samuel Rogers shows from a perspective of three days Katherine Wilder at 19, at 22 and at 34, draws her moods and character with clarity, and offers a comparison between her life with Albert whom she marries and the life she might have had if she had married Gabriel.

Anne Green with "Marietta" presents a forceful and magnetic girl, and the widespread effects of her influence.

Sir Oliver Lodge in an autobiography, "Past Years," relates the influential experiences of early years and later progress. One of the world's foremost physicists, a scientist who has spent a long life devoted to development of scientific facts, he tells how he became convinced through physical research that, to him, spiritualism also is fact.

Federal Buildings To Be Built Soon

Washington (AP)—Start of construction on Lewisburg's new federal building before the end of March was promised by the treasury.

Treasury officials in charge of public works told Representative Boland, of Scranton, they expected to place the $225,000 project on the market and receive bids on it within the next months. Specifications for the building, to house both the postoffice and a federal court room, are being completed now.

Several changes in plans for the structure occasioned delays in getting the project started.

A complaint against the slow process was sent Boland by Federal Judge Johnson, of Lewisburg, one of the two sitting justices of the Middle Pennsylvania judicial district. Johnson wrote Boland the town, which is one of the sitting places of the court, is "sorely in need" of a building for both postoffice and court house purposes and asked that it be completed in time for the January, 1933, session of the tribunal.

DAIRYMEN SEE ICE SHORTAGE

Cooling Systems Are Being Considered To Replace Ice.

Harrisburg (AP)—Pennsylvania dairymen have an eye cocked weatherward these days and not without reason.

Usually mid-February finds ice houses packed and streams still frozen over. This year saw dust piles are waiting in vain to be used in storing the ice against mid-summer heat, and streams are running high through much of the state from mid-winter rains.

The situation with the dairymen is acute, for few of them have the facilities for the manufacture of artificial ice, and depend on the stored ice from winter for the cooling and preservation of their milk in mid-summer.

Thousands of tons of ice are stored throughout the rural districts for use in milk cooling, but the localities in central Pennsylvania in which ice could be cut this year are few and far between.

Trucks collecting milk from the producers and taking it to receiving stations probably will make a double trip during the summer, if there is lack of weather cold enough to produce an ice crop. The milk could be gathered on one trip and ice delivered from cars on the other. Artificial ice in all probability would have to be used.

The same problem received consideration at Scranton early this month where ice dealers in the anthracite region called a special meeting to consider the situation. In that section, the passage of January without the usual ice harvest created great concern. A survey revealed that the combined storage totaled only 100,000 tons and arrangements were made to have ice shipped if sudden, continued cold weather did not produce the necessary supply. Dealers, while expressing confidence that the crop would be forthcoming, learned the principal source of supply for the area, was only three inches thick as compared with the practical average of 14 inches.

Some residents of the north central part of the state have recalled that about 35 years ago there was such a winter, and during the following summer ice was shipped from Nova Scotia for sale in the larger towns. The smaller towns then did without, but the daily business at that time was not engaging the attention of so many farmers as now.

Packed in saw dust in the small ice houses, the losses during the early summer as a rule are surprisingly small.

Cheap cooling systems are being considered by some far-sighted milk producers, already looking forward to an iceless summer. Some of them have figured that by using insulator cooling tanks they can utilize spring water, which is cool enough when it comes from the springs, but soon warms up when put in tanks which are not insulated.

Gene Venzke, Mile Record
Holder, Runs 10 Miles A Day In Hobnails.

Pottstown (AP)—Gene Venzke, the boy who says he'd "rather run than eat," trained himself to break the world one-mile indoor record by running ten miles a day in hobnail boots.

Venzke, who hung up a record of four minutes eleven and two-fifths seconds for the mile at the millrose games in New York February 6, developed speed and endurance by running five miles each way to and from his work in Colebrookdale. He didn't realize then, about five years ago, that he was laying the foundation for record breaking track performances, but he knew that he enjoyed running.

"You run the hardest when you lose a race," he says. The hardest race he ever ran, he explains, was the mile at the Meadowbrook games in Philadelphia last year when he was beaten by Ray Conger, of Chicago, and Carl Coan, of the University of Pennsylvania.

Venzke always wanted to be a runner, he admits, but never thought he was "good enough." He started to run back and forth to work after he won his first race, in 1925—a cross country run staged at Reading which finished on the football field between the halves of an Albricht-Temple game.

"It was after that," he says, "that I started to run back and forth to work with a prayer on my lips that I might make a showing in big competition."

"I trained and trained and entered race after race. Each time I could feel myself getting better, even though I didn't win. I loved to run; and even if I hadn't been successful in a single race, I imagine I'd still be doing the same amount of training."

The day after his victory in New York, when here to rest, he donned spikes and track suit and went to the Hill school track "for a few turns around."

SEED SAMPLES REVEAL MANY CONTAIN WEEDS

State Botanist Says Poor Seed Is "Dear At Any Price."

Harrisburg (AP)—After supervising the collection and testing of thousands of seed samples in enforcing the Pennsylvania seed law, Dr. F. M. Gress, state botanist, is convinced that poor seed, whether for the garden or the field, is "dear at any price."

Advising against the purchase of seed just because the price is low, Doctor Gress said:

"Just recently our laboratory analyzed such a sample and found that almost one-tenth of it was weed seeds. This seed should not be used, even if it cost nothing. Weeds will be introduced which will cause more injury than the seed is worth."

"One can not tell definitely by sight whether seed will germinate or not. Something may have injured or killed the tiny young plant within the seed. Therefore, all seed should be tested before sowing."

"There are so many simple ways to test seeds for germination that one need only mention the rag-doll and the moist blotting paper methods. Any farmer can make a simple test for such seeds as wheat, corn, clover, alfalfa, and timothy. Some of the smaller grass seeds, such as

red top, blue grass and a few others are a little more difficult to test. If he can not make his own tests he should examine the tags carefully to see what the germination test given by the seedman shows. Let your slogan be 'select for best seed and always test for germination.'

Two tons of certified tomato seed were produced in Pennsylvania last year, the bulk of it being shipped during the winter to tomato growers in Florida, Texas and other southern states. K. W. Laurer, pathologist of the Pennsylvania bureau of plant industry, reports.

Of the 138 acres entered for certification in 1931, almost 102 acres passed final field inspection, compared with 250 acres entered and only 56 acres certified in 1930. The improvement of the seed entered last year over the crop entered the previous year was considerable both as to type of fruit produced and freedom from disease. The crop as a whole suffered more from the effects of the dry weather in 1931 than the year before, but the fruit produced was uniform both in external shape and internal structure.

PHILADELPHIA LEADS
Washington (AP)—Philadelphia is the third largest motorboating center in the country. A total of 15,685 of such craft were registered at the beginning of the year from Philadelphia with the department of commerce. New York and Tampa led the Pennsylvania city.

EAGER TO TELL ABOUT HER STOMACH

"I want to tell others about my experience with Pope's Diapers," says Mrs. B. Eastman, 1200 California St., Denver, Colo. "I tried a lot of things for my indigestion but none of them did any good. Then a friend persuaded me to take a few tablets of this wonderful preparation."

"Now I even eat cabbage without any distress afterwards. I am not nearly so nervous as I used to be; feel much stronger and better in every way. A medicine must have real merit to bring forth enthusiastic statements like this. And when not one, but hundreds, even thousands, are telling the same story of success, there seems no reason to doubt the day-in and day-out reliability of Pope's Diapers to help stomach sufferers."

These harmless, candy-like tablets relieve the heartburn, nausea, gas, belching, headache, "flatulency" and other symptoms of indigestion.

"Alice: Come Home. All Is FORGIVEN"

Few advertisements in your newspaper start that way. Yet most of them are just as personal, and almost as promising.

Manufacturers and merchants must know your needs and wants, or go out of business. They must know, for instance, that about the first of next month you'll be very much interested in a new hat, or a new lamp, or new towels. They must foresee your wishes—and have what you'll want when you want it.

And they do—constantly striving to suit, at the lowest possible prices. Then telling you in advertising of the gifts they have brought from the far corners of the earth, to please Your Royal Highness.

Read the advertisements in this paper. They are addressed to you—personally. They bring you news of better things to have and easier ways to live. Intimate news, of immediate interest.

Young Men's Shop

To Stage First Sale
In History Thursday

Mr. I. Bierer, proprietor of the Young Men's Shop, to Sell Out and Discontinue Men's Clothing.

Sale to Start Tomorrow
Thursday, at 9 a. m.

As this is going to press, a crew of help under the direction of Mr.
Bierer of the Young Men's Shop located at 28 Baltimore street is busy as bees rearranging and re-pricing the entire stock of merchandise for quick disposal. Nothing has been left undone. Thousands of large colored posters have been sent to thrifty homes throughout the county heralding the drastic disposal sale which starts tomorrow morning, promptly at 9 o'clock.

The entire stock of men's and boys' suits, topcoats and overcoats is to be sold out. Every garment will be marked in plain figures. The low prices on their entire stock of quality merchandise are so low that thrifty people who read this will, in justice to themselves and their pocketbook, attend the Young Men's Shop's first sale in six years.
It's a sale with a reason, and not an excuse. The sale will last nine days.

After the sale, Mr. Bierer will enlarge the men's furnishings and men's and women's shoe department. Their page advertisement appears on page three.—Adv.

REVIEW AIDS
GIVEN FARMER

Tells Ways In Which Department Aided Rural Taxpayers Last Year.

Testing 697,965 cattle for tuberculosis thus protecting the public health and enabling farmers to hold their milk market, establishing grades for eggs making possible successful competition with the Pacific Coast, and conducting a state-wide check on unscrupulous milk dealers resulting in the payment of rebates amounting to thousands of dollars to farmers, are listed by Secretary of Agriculture John A. McSparran among the outstanding accomplishments of the Pennsylvania department of agriculture, during the past year.

Tuberculosis Eradication
The bovine tuberculosis eradication work continued at a rapid rate during 1931, the annual report indicated. With one exception, more cattle were tested than in any other year on record. The number of cattle under supervision stands at 1-161,704, or 83 per cent of all the cattle in the commonwealth. Seventy-two townships were completely tested during the year, bringing the total to 1193 in sixty-six counties. All the herds in forty-six out of the sixty-seven counties are now under supervision.

In the course of the year, the market for milk has been held for the farmers in untested areas in every possible case. Department officials have gone to boards of health in cities where bans on milk from untested cows were contemplated and secured the co-operation of the boards, providing the farmers had signed for the test. In this way, the market was saved for hundreds of farmers who co-operated with the state and federal governments. Opposition to the test has practically disappeared.

Egg Grading
"The department asked the last regular session of the general assembly for an egg grading law but the request was refused," Secretary McSparran said in his review. "The department, in co-operation with poultrymen, then established voluntary egg grades for use in Pennsylvania. This action has met with encouraging results. The grades were immediately adopted by the officials of the egg auction at Doylestown and a licensed inspector was located at the assembling plant to grade all eggs before the auction."

This development has proven helpful to hundreds of poultrymen in Bucks county in obtaining premium prices, and apparently the Philadelphia market has responded to the situation and the best grades of eggs in Pennsylvania are now selling from one cent below to several cents above the price received by Pacific Coast producers. Before the egg grading work was attempted here, the California eggs were selling from four to six cents a dozen above the price paid for the Pennsylvania-laid eggs.
